CITY IS ASSURED
PWA MILLIONS
TO DIG SUBWAYProject High Up on Pump Priming List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Chicago is certain of aid for its subway development under the 3 billion dollar pump priming program as the legislation now stands, Public Works administration officials reported tonight.

The 28 million dollar project for three downtown subways, planned by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, stands high on the list of projects approved by the examination division of PWA.

It also conforms with the regulations for PWA grants set forth in the 3 billion dollar spending program passed by the house last Thursday.

The fate of the 3 billion dollar program now rests with the senate. While the upper house is expected to make changes in the bill, none of these, it is believed, will affect Chicago's chances of getting the long wanted and needed subways.

Declare Aid Assured.
Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes, as head of PWA, declined to discuss Chicago's prospects. It is his fixed policy, he said, not to discuss probable allocations.

But other PWA officials said that aid for Chicago's subway is assured so far as PWA is concerned. They predicted that the subways will be among the first of the projects to receive allocations upon senate passage and presidential approval of the 3 billion dollar bill.

"Chicago may expect a definite share in the money to be voted," an official said. "The subways fit into the PWA aim for beneficial projects. In fact, few projects are better qualified for PWA approval."

"It is a worthy successor to the sanitary district and outer drive link bridge projects, which the PWA already has aided Chicago in obtaining. Chicago need only fear the unforeseen and that not overly much. I expect to ride in the Chicago subway."

Work Must Start Jan. 1.
Under the bill passed by the house, work must start on PWA projects by Jan. 1, 1939, in order to qualify for allocations.

Mayor Kelly has assured PWA headquarters here that the city can start dirt flying within sixty days, or shortly after the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, when the funds will be available. Such a start will be well in advance of the bill's deadline.

The bill also provides that projects must be "substantially" completed by June 30, 1940. This generally is interpreted to mean that the projects will have to be fully completed by Jan. 1, 1941.

Mayor Kelly has assured PWA that city engineers have declared Chicago can complete the three subways within the prescribed time.

TUBES FOR CARS, BUSES

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.
Chicago's proposed downtown subways are being designed so that they can be used for any of three kinds of underground local transportation—rapid transit trains, street cars, or trolley buses. Philip Harrington, special traction engineer, explained yesterday that Mayor Kelly's program for the initial stage of tunnel construction will be adaptable to future changes in traffic trends.

The engineering staff of the city council's local transportation committee is rushing plans and specifications for the subways so that work can begin at once if a federal grant is obtained. Mayor Kelly is confident that the public works administration will soon allot a contribution of 45 per cent of the estimated 28 to 31 million dollars cost of three subways and that the city traction fund can be used to finance the remainder of the cost.

"L" Trains Under State Street.
The proposed State street subway is planned for elevated trains, but it will be constructed so that either street cars or trolley buses could operate through it with only minor alterations. Harrington said. The Jackson and Washington street tubes are designed for street car operations but they could be used for trolley buses or rapid transit trains if such modification proved desirable.

The subways will be strictly transportation tubes, designed to give the maximum traffic benefit from a minimum of cost.

HORNER CALLS MEETING TODAY
ON RELIEF CRISISSeek Ways to Feed
34,000 Families.

Gov. Horner.

In announcing the conference Gov. Horner refused to discuss what measures might be taken to care for relief clients from the time the CRA closes its relief stations until the legislature has convened and appropriated emergency funds.

Session to Be Called.

"A special session dealing with relief will be called right away, but I cannot yet announce the date," he said. It was reported in Springfield meanwhile that the call will be issued this week, probably for May 24.

Relief authorities have agreed that legislative action is the sole hope of averting a shortage of food supplies not only in Chicago, but in many downstate townships.

Following exhaustion in April of the city council's $5,500,000 relief tax appropriation for 1938, the CRA was left with only $1,912,132 in state funds to meet a $3,380,423 need for this month. Since Relief Commissioner Leo M. Lyons chose to pay the usual family budgets as long as the funds lasted, 34,000 of the city's 93,000 relief cases will receive no checks this month unless emergency funds are raised.

Opposition to Grant Rises.

Lyons estimated the shortage for the rest of the year at more than $12,000,000. Only $1,900,000 is received monthly from the state sales tax, while the estimated need is $3,600,000 a month.

Opposition to emergency legislation to raise these additional amounts was expressed yesterday by State Representative Calvin D. Johnson (R., Belleville).

Mr. Johnson is a member of the legislative commission on relief which is preparing recommendations to be presented when the legislature convenes.

Urges Pro Rata Cut.

"I realize that it is necessary to extend Chicago some temporary relief, but Mr. Lyons is adept at working up crises at opportune times," said Johnson. "I am convinced Chicago's relief case budgets could have been cut pro rata while the city still had funds from its relief tax levy."

"I am in favor of having the state appropriate an additional $500,000 a month to meet shortages throughout the state until the present system of relief has been revised on a more economical basis. The present funds would go 25 per cent further if waste were eliminated."

Issued Alphabetically.

Relief checks are issued to clients alphabetically throughout the month, which will leave those whose names range from N to Z without checks. On the day the client's check normally would be due he will receive an order for Federal Surplus Commodity corporation foodstuffs distributed by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission as supplemental aid to all relief clients.

Mr. Lyons estimated that the IERC has enough food on hand to feed each of the 34,000 families about a week, although the diet—beans, butter, cabbage, celery, and rice—will be unbalanced.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, managing officer of the council of social agencies, and Joel D. Hunter, head of the United Charities, said that the city's 171 private agencies have no resources to provide aid for so vast a number of cases.

WORLD WITHOUT HONOR

Calls Student
Editor Ouster
Nazi Bigotry

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., May 15.—[Special.]—Dean George C. Selery of the college of letters and science, University of Wisconsin, in a sharp statement issued yesterday charged that racial bigotry inspired the recent ouster of Richard J. Davis as editor of the Daily Cardinal, student publication.

Davis, a junior from New York City, is a Jew. The dean demanded his reinstatement.

Dean Selery's condemnation opened further the campus conflict in which faculty members have taken sides with the students. Fraternity versus nonfraternity elements are involved in the struggle.

Call Appointment Pled.

Davis was ousted from his editorship last month by the new Cardinal board of control on the ground that his appointment by the old board was illegal because the old board had been defeated for reelection in the spring by a ticket said to have been sponsored by the fraternities. In his statement, Dean Selery rejected the legalistic explanation of Davis' ouster.

"Mr. Davis is an American citizen of Jewish extraction," said the dean. "This [racial] reason for displacing him was expressed by a student member of the new board of control. What is more ominous is that it has been echoed by one or two members of the board who are not students."

Campus in Turmoil.

"When an effort to put it [the Cardinal] into the hands of a different group for next year is supported by an appeal to race prejudice, I am in arms. The western world is appalled by the results of race prejudice in central Europe. Are we, as students and faculty to condone this attack upon American citizens of Jewish ancestry because of their ancestry? If we do, then we are traitors to the finest traditions of our country."

In protest against Davis' removal, fifty co-workers have resigned from the Cardinal staff and are publishing another campus paper in competition with the Cardinal.

SOLOMON'S RICH PORT ON RED SEA, INSPIRED BY SHEBA, UNEARTHED

New Haven, Conn., May 15.—(AP)—

King Solomon's seaport on a northern reach of the Red sea, a flourishing city of trade and industry in Biblical days of nearly 3,000 years ago, has been discovered and excavated by American archaeologists. An incident in the establishment of the port was the visit of the queen of Sheba to Solomon's court.

Prof. Millar Burrows of Yale university, president of the American School of Oriental Research, announced today that an expedition sponsored by the American Philosophical society and headed by Nelson Glueck of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem had excavated the port, the exact location of which was unknown until recently.

The site, Dr. Burrows said, now known to the Arabs as Tell El-Kheleif, is at the northern end of the Gulf of Agabah, the eastern arm of the Red sea.

Everybody Has Foot Ills but the Chiropodist

BY MARCIA WINN.

Apparently the situation is hopeless from the start; for, no matter what profession or trade you choose, according to the Illinois chiropodists, you will have trouble with your feet.

Each profession, said delegates to the thirtieth annual convention of the Illinois Association of Chiropodists and Foot Specialists, held at the Hotel Morrison, has a distinctive foot ailment. Not even truck driving is free. In fact, it is one of the most blighted.

"You'd think a stenographer would be free from foot trouble," Dr. M. R. Udell explained, "but she isn't. She crosses her left leg over her right [or vice-versa] when taking dictation and puts her notebook on her knee. And what happens? She gets personal palsy, and after a while her leg begins to jitter."

A Loss of Symmetry.
"A manicurist hooks her heels over the rung of her chair. This causes definite pathological condition of the foot and leg, a shortening of the calf muscle and interferes with the symmetry of the leg."

"Professional models who always walk on these stiltlike heels—we don't condemn the heels, but their abuse—get wobbly feet."

"Did you ever hear of automobile feet? That comes from constantly pressing the foot on the accelerator. Professional truck drivers and traveling salesmen all have it. It causes the metatarsal bones to rub."

Even in Swinging Doors.

"Painter's foot is something like that, except it is on both feet. That comes from climbing ladders. Tailors who sit cross-legged get tailors' bunions on the wrong side of the foot."

Dentists, he said, have dental foot from standing first on one foot, then on the other. Young women who bicycle for their figures' sake acquire "bicycle feet," pains in the ball of the foot, while golfers, who don their oldest, most run-over pair of shoes for thirty-six holes of golf when they should wear their best shoes to support their weight, have very known ailment.

And the chiropodists?

"O," groaned Dr. Udell, "we get stomach trouble from always sitting in a stooped position to fix up the other fellow's feet."

Races Storm
in Test Flight from Airport

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Winning a race with a hail and thunder storm, Pilot Johnny Miller in his Kellett autogiro yesterday made a perfect landing on the roof of the postoffice building in the midst of the downtown district.

In a seventeen minute round trip air journey he carried the first pouches of mail by air between the Chicago airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue and the postoffice roof, fourteen stories above ground. Mail trucks take approximately ninety minutes for the same journey.

The flight opened National Air Mail Week in Chicago and commemorated the anniversary of the first air mail flights in 1918. It also proved that the dream of using autogiros to transfer mail from outlying airports directly to the main postal centers is both feasible and practical.

Test of Newest Development.

This was the first experiment in the newest development of air mail service. It was made possible by determination of the pilot and W. Wallace Kellett, manufacturer of the Kellett autogiros, who overcame extraordinary obstacles to make the test. Miller's handling of the ship was a dramatic exhibition of flying skill, but there was other drama behind the scenes.

Miller and postal clerks at the airport loaded three pouches of mail, weighing 135 pounds, into the front cockpit of the spidery, blue, wingless plane at 1:30 p. m.

This mail had just been taken from the compartments of a Transcontinental and Western airplane which landed here after a trip from New York City.

Miller started his 225 horse power radial engine immediately and after warming it for a few moments he engaged a drive shaft which started his three rotor blades—the revolving wings of his craft. Two minutes later, with the rotor spinning rapidly he turned the ship's nose into a 16 mile an hour north wind and climbed away to the cheers of 4,000 persons gathered at the field to watch his departure.

Conveyed by Three Planes.

At 1,500 feet he was met by three airplanes and conveyed over the eight miles to the loop area. As he approached the postoffice, however, he began losing height and the accompanying formation broke away.

The giro was visible as a speck from the postoffice roof at 1:40 p. m., and a minute later it was well within range of vision, its rotors flickering above the fuselage. Gauging his distance perfectly, Miller dove toward the roof and passed 100 feet over it, headed northward in order to look over the steel landing mat of 3,000 square feet and see that the 300 spectators there were off the landing zone.

One circle and he was back into

TWICE PAROLED
CONVICT NAMED
BY TWO WOMENOne of His Victims Seriously Hurt.

BY HAROLD MURRAY.

A former parole violator who twice was sent to prison on rape charges and twice was the beneficiary of paroles was seized yesterday by the Hyde Park police for the vicious hammer attacks on two women early Sunday morning. He was identified by both women as the man who struck them when they resisted his efforts to force them into his automobile.

Louis Serraille.

The hammer wielder is Louis Serraille, once convicted of attempted rape and later sentenced to prison for a twenty-five year term for raping an elderly woman.

Hails Women from Auto.

Both attacks occurred in the Hyde Park district. He hailed Miss Ethel Hanna, 20 years old, from his car, but she ignored his advances and ran to the vestibule of the building in which she lives at 4201 Berkeley avenue. Serraille pursued, striking her several times with his hammer before her screams scared him away.

Shortly after this he encountered Mrs. Anna Underwood, 39 years old, and again attempted a flirtation. She, too, ignored him. Incensed, Serraille leaped from his car and battered her head with the hammer, striking her so severely that she was taken to the Garfield Park hospital suffering a possible skull fracture. She was struck down near her home at 1036 East 46th street.

Recall Sex Offense Record.

Descriptions of the attacks, supplied by the women, tallied with that of Serraille, and police immediately started a search for him, recalling his record of sex offenses. Sergt. James P. McLaughlin and William Curran learned the suspect was employed as a chauffeur by Mrs. Sarah Friedlob, a widow, of the Shoreland hotel.

When Serraille appeared at a public garage at 56th street and Stony Island avenue, where Mrs. Friedlob's car was kept, he was seized by the policemen. On the back seat of the car was a machinist's hammer.

Serraille at first denied the brutal attacks, but later said he had been drinking Saturday night and didn't remember what had happened.

"The last I remember," he told police and Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle, "was driving around and drinking a bottle of liquor I bought when the tavern closed. When I drink I can't remember what I do. If the women say I struck them, I couldn't contradict them."

Identified by Both Women.

Miss Hanna was called to the police station and identified Serr

Oct. 25, 1933, his conviction was reversed by the Illinois Supreme court and the charge later not pressed before Judge James F. Farley. Assistant State's Attorney Boyle was unable to examine court records last night for explanation of the action. This, he said, he will do today.

Police records, however, show that Serraille was rearrested as a parole violator and returned to Joliet where he served about nine months when the parole board granted his second parole. At that time he was paroled in care of Fred Friedlob, son of Mrs. Friedlob. He finally was discharged from his second parole last July 10.

One of "Most Brutal" Cases.

In recalling the case last night Judge Sullivan said it was one of the most brutal he had ever heard. He declared he was not acquainted with the opinion of the Illinois Supreme court reversing the conviction since he was appointed shortly after hearing the case to the federal bench.

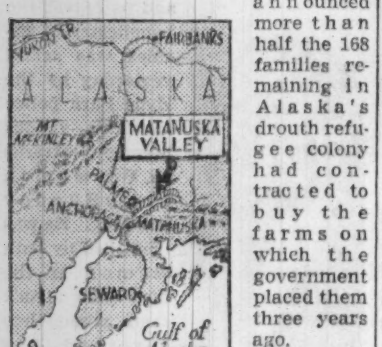

Serraille's latest court appearance was last February when he was fined $10 in Municipal court for indecent exposure. Capt. Ray Crane and Prosecutor Boyle said Serraille would be questioned further into attacks on other women in the district and in connection with the rape-murder last Aug. 21 of Miss Anna Kuchta, 19 years old, a nurse at the Chicago hospital.

Serraille was married a second time eight months ago. He told police he came from South America. He talked freely of his past troubles for sex offenses.

Mrs. Friedlob, whom he served as chauffeur, said Serraille previously had been employed for many years by her husband. She said he had been a faithful employee.

U.S. COLONISTS IN ALASKA AGREE TO PURCHASE FARMS

PALMER, Alaska, May 15.—(AP)—Matanuska project's manager today announced more than half the 168 families remaining in Alaska's drouth refuge colony had contracted to buy the farms on which the government placed them three years ago.

Arrow points to United States colonial project.

"First major step toward permanency," as colonists closed their annual celebration of the project's anniversary. "Perhaps colonists in all will refuse to sign contracts," Jacobs said, "and these will be asked to leave. These will be undesirable."

He said the contracts contain usual conditional sales provisions, with clauses to protect the cooperative plan of the colony. Colonists have thirty years to pay, with annual installments ranging from $50 to $330, depending upon the amount of debt they have incurred in the last three years.

BOAT WITH FIVE PHILADELPHIANS ABOARD MISSING

Cape May, N. J., May 15.—[Special.]—Five Philadelphians aboard a missing cabin cruiser which left Philadelphia yesterday morning were being sought by the coast guard in Delaware bay tonight as clearing skies marked the end of a stormy week-end. The missing craft, the twenty-four foot power boat Betty, piloted by Mathias Paulus. With Paulus were Charles Dever, John Fox, Charles Berger, and Rudolph Gable, all members of a club which owns the boat and bears the skipper's name. The boat was due at Greenbank, near here, yesterday afternoon. Capt. Charles E. Hargis of the coast guard put out a surf boat with a crew of two late today. When there was no report of them the coast guard air base sent out a seventy-five foot cutter under command of Robert Logan, boatswain mate.

JAP PLANE FLIES 7,103 MILES; SETS ENDURANCE MARK

TOKIO, May 15.—[The Japanese experimental plane "Wings of a Century" today completed a new non-stop endurance record of 7,103 miles in its maiden flight of sixty-two hours along a triangular course about 250 miles around.

The plane, which was built by the Imperial university aeronautical research institute at a cost of $250,000, landed at Kisarazu, near Tokyo, after exceeding the French record for sustained flight by 516 miles. The plane carried four tons of fuel.

A crew of three piloted the plane, which has a wingspan of 122 feet. They had had little sleep, but ate heartily, having carried plenty of cooked rice, sandwiches, bananas, wine, fruit juices, vinegar, and water.

HENLEIN HINTS HE WON HELP ON HIS TRIP TO LONDON

Czech Nazi Chief Stops Off in Berlin on Way Home.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, May 15.—Konrad Henlein, the Fuehrer of Nazis in Czechoslovakia, disappeared for two hours after his arrival late last night by plane from England. It was presumed he had spent the time in conferences with Nazi chiefs and in telephoning Reichsfuehrer Hitler, who is resting at his retreat in Berchtesgaden, Bavaria.

The bespectacled leader of the Sudeten German (Nazi) party had been in London attending conferences with British statesmen and politicians over events in Czechoslovakia. He insisted his visit to Berlin had no political importance and said he merely was passing through the German capital on his way to Prague, where he arrived today.

Calla Parleys Successful.

"I think I was successful in my conversations in England," Henlein said, describing his visit there as "purely private."

He failed to specify the nature of the success which he believed he had achieved. Nazis here insisted that Henlein wanted to induce the British to use their influence to enforce a plebiscite along the northeastern border of Czechoslovakia (the Sudeten mountain district), which the Germans claim for themselves.

Foreign diplomats in Berlin were perturbed by rumors in Germany that Czechoslovakia is preparing to strike against Germany rather than give in to demands for autonomy for 3,250,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia. Diplomats fear that systematic dissemination of these rumors increases the danger that radical Nazis might interpret these rumors as a signal calling for a drive to rush to the aid of Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Warn Powers "Hands Off."

Persons close to Field Marshal Hermann Goering, No. 2 Nazi, who in recent months has strongly influenced Hitler's foreign policy, adopted an extremely truculent tone in warning western powers that whatever happens in Czechoslovakia is none of their concern.

"Germany is the only great power entitled to take a strong interest in this question, since as the leading nation in central Europe she is responsible for the maintenance of order in these territories," they said.

The Essener National Zeitung, which is Goering's mouthpiece, said that Germany "can guarantee peaceful and satisfactory solution of the Sudeten German question only if all demands of the Nazi leader, Henlein, are fulfilled."

Hall Creation of Guard Unit.

Creation of militant Schutzstaffel bodies (hand picked guards) by Henlein's party in Czechoslovakia is being greeted with satisfaction by Nazis who see in it a further increase of the "striking power of the Sudeten German Nazis."

In villages and small towns of the Sudeten German territories which are near the border youths travel through the countryside on motorcycles campaigning for the Nazis the same as the Storm Troopers did in Germany in the days before the Nazis assumed power.

They tell the local population that when the Germans take over the region they will not have to pay the mortgages they owe the banks and the tax bills they owe the Czechs.

Chinese Drive Japs' Foochow Landing Party Back to Ships

FOOCHOW, China, May 15.—(AP)—The Japanese army's second coastal onslaught on Fukien province proved short lived today.

Aided by a heavy plane and naval attack the Japanese landed near the mouth of the Min river, southeast of Foochow, but withdrew in the face of stiff Chinese resistance.

Chinese shore batteries kept up a barrage against the landing force which was believed to be a forerunner of a land invasion of Fukien province.

Numerous Japanese warships were lying off the coast of the province and further attacks were expected. Civilians have started to move into the interior.

Foochow, which is 130 miles north of Amoy and one of the largest cities on the South China coast, is expected to be the key objective of the Japanese invasion of the province. The Japanese already hold Amoy.

Japs Report New Gains.

SHANGHAI, May 15.—(AP)—Japanese legions fighting to crush Chinese forces in central China reported "sensational" gains today along China's vital east-west Lunghai railroad.

Japanese army spokesmen said their forces surged forward both north and south of this "lifeline" railroad in renewed assaults which followed up the reported cutting of the line in two places.

They said upward of 100,000 Chinese defenders were "reduced to a state of confusion" west of Suchow, the junction point on the Lunghai line and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

A Chinese retreat from this month old battle area was reported to have begun with at least 10,000 Chinese fleeing westward through southwest Shantung province.

Japanese reports of deep inroads into Chinese defenses east of the Tientsin-Pukow railroad were disputed by the embattled defenders who said they were holding their own in that sector.

Forty Divisions Blocked.

The Japanese said the retreat of forty Chinese divisions was cut off by the severing of the Lunghai railroad near Sinanchen, in Kiangsu province sixty-seven miles east of Suchow.

YOUNG BELGIAN SOCIALIST PICKS 11 MAN CABINET

BRUSSELS, May 15.—(AP)—Paul Henri Spaak, moderate Socialist of 39 years, formed an eleven man cabinet today with a former Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor as one of two key ministers intrusted with the nation's pressing financial problems.

He drafted back into the finance ministry the liberal conservative economist, Max Leo Gerard, who checked a serious money panic in 1936 during the first government of Paul Van Zeeland.

The other key ministry, the combined economic and agriculture department, was assigned to Paul Heymans, a Catholic banker, engineer, and professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1924 to 1928.

The new cabinet, succeeding the ministry of Paul Emile Janson, which resigned Friday, contains four Socialists, four Catholics, two Liberals, and one nonparty member.

2 1/2 Pound Baby Born After Mother Dies in Car Crash

Toledo, O., May 15.—[Special.]—A few minutes after Mrs. Beatrice Erdman, 26 years old, died as result of an automobile accident in the county hospital here tonight, Dr. M. V. Lingle delivered a seven month boy weighing 2 1/2 pounds by means of a Caesarean incision. The child was placed in an incubator and has a good chance to live, according to physicians. Mrs. Erdman was riding with her husband, a WPA worker, early this evening when the car careened into a post, fatally injuring her.

BRITISH PRESTIGE
JOLTED; FOREIGN
CHIEF MAY QUIT

London Is Dismayed Over
Diplomatic Reverses.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, May 15.—England's prestige in the world dropped to a record low as last week ended.

Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister, returned to London today from the league of nations council meeting at Geneva. British papers said he is anxious to be relieved of his job in a pending cabinet shakeup and be allowed to return to the comparative calm of his former position as lord privy seal.

Halifax is described as having returned with dismay at the behavior of the nations which once always voted the way the British voted. They were found sitting on the fence while the sheep and goats were counted at Geneva last Friday when Spain introduced a resolution calling for abandonment of the policy of nonintervention in the Spanish civil war.

British Get Only Three Followers.

Only three nations—France, Poland and Rumania—on the league council were persuaded by the British to reject the resolution. They indicated they did not want to offend either Italy or Germany. Two nations—Spain and soviet Russia—voted for the resolution. The other nine at the council table abstained.

That was a jolt. But it was not such a jolt as Mussolini's speech in Geneva Saturday, a speech in which he declared himself Italy's "loyal friend" with Germany. This indicated that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has failed to estrange Mussolini from Reichsfuehrer Hitler and break up the Rome-Berlin axis.

Hardly less of a jolt was Mexico's breaking off of diplomatic relations. Most of the papers today insisted Mexico had suspended but not severed relations with England.

France Appeals to Worry.

It is not known publicly yet just what the Germans have told the British and the French about the recent representations made in Berlin on the fate of Czechoslovakia. Two months ago the Germans told the British and French that central European affairs were the concern of central Europe—a warning that others should keep their hands off.

This, coupled with the British cabinet crisis, appears to be worrying France, Britain's ally, about tying her wagon to Chamberlain's star.

"It is difficult to express the complete pessimism with which Georges Bonnet, foreign minister, and other French delegates are returning to Paris from Geneva where they had gone intent on sacrificing some of their principles to support Chamberlain's policy," said Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, influential French journalist.

In a London paper, Francisco Franco, commander-in-chief of Spain's rebels, also is acting up. More British ships have been bombed in a series of raids by Franco's flyers on Valencia and Barcelona. Franco also has been sending unsatisfactory replies to British protests.

Protest to Russia Rejected.

Moscow last week rejected the British protest about Rose Cohen, British Jewish citizen who was jailed last August as a spy. A British note sent to Moscow cited her case as a violation of the British-Soviet agreement of July, 1937, and insisted the British ambassador should have been told of the arrest long ago.

Capping the climax of the black week for England is the fact that on the day that Halifax induced the league council to let the British recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, the United States government announced it had no intention of departing from its practice of refusing recognition to territorial additions gained by military aggression in defiance of international law.

Halifax called on Chamberlain at No. 10 Downing street tonight to report on developments at Geneva. It is understood that he also expressed his desire to relinquish the foreign ministry. The prime minister was reported to be pondering the reorganization of the cabinet involving six to ten ministers. He will see King George VI tomorrow before announcing the shakeup probably after Wednesday's cabinet meeting.

Predict Air Chiefs Will Go.

To facilitate the changes every member of the cabinet was reported to have placed his office at the prime minister's disposal.

Political sources forecast that Earl Winterton, deputy secretary for air, as well as Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for air, will go. Malcolm MacDonald, secretary of state for the dominions, may become the next foreign minister or colonial secretary, where, under Chamberlain's guidance, he would handle the tough job of Germany's demand for colonies.

Charters Plane for Flight; Leaps 2,000 Feet to Death

Council Bluffs, Ia., May 15.—(P)—A man identified as Ward C. Fritz, 22 years old, of Omaha, Neb., leaped to his death from an airplane flying over the residential district here tonight. Alvin Kauden, the pilot, said he was hired by Fritz at the Omaha airport and was flying at 2,000 feet when he saw his passenger climb on a wing and jump. The body fell in a garden behind a house. Fritz, a dancer, was unmarried.

CHARGES BRITAIN DIRECTS FOREIGN POLICY OF THE U.S.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Representative George Holden Tinkham (R., Mass.) charged tonight that President Roosevelt's statement applauding Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's agreement with Mussolini to recognize the conquest of Ethiopia was instigated by the British government.

"The President," said the congressman, "is following precisely the course in foreign affairs that led the United States to the bloody fields of Europe in 1917. His constant projection of the United States into European politics and European conflicts creates commitments, moral if not actual, which inevitably will lead this country into the next great war in Europe."

"The President's position warrants the condemnation of every true American."

In endorsing the Anglo-Italian agreement, said Mr. Tinkham, the President did "what would be expected of a high commissioner of a British mandated territory, the governor of a British crown colony, or the governor-general of a British dominion."

90,000 Taken Prisoners.

SARAGOSSA, Spain, May 15.—(P)—Rebel authorities announced today that more than 90,000 government soldiers had been taken prisoner in the Spanish civil war up to April 27.

These did not include prisoners who passed voluntarily into the rebel line but only those taken under arms, it was said.

Of the 90,000 captured before April 27, it was announced about 10,000 were prosecuted on assassination charges, 30,962 placed in labor battalions for road building and other public works, 6,997 employed in special services, and 45,885 held in concentration camps.

REBEL BAYONETS
BREAK LOYALIST
FRONT IN HILLS

Franco's Army Gains New Ground Near Teruel.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], May 15.—(P)—A bayonet charge which dislodged government militiamen from Mount San Cristobal, a mile high peak, today gave Spain's rebels a new foothold in their drive toward the main inland highway to Valencia and Castellon de la Plana.

A column driving south from Alpeuz near the western, or Teruel, end of the rebel front in eastern Spain, won the commanding position in the Sierra de Gudar preparatory for an attack on Mora de Rubielos, which is on the southern slopes of the mountains.

Mora de Rubielos lies on a secondary road running south to intersect the Teruel to the sea highway at a point about forty miles northwest of Sagunto. Sagunto is on the main coastal roadway between Castellon to the north and Valencia to the south.

Key to Valencia Approach.

The Sierra de Gudar, one of several ranges which have made the struggle on the eastern front a complex war of positions, long has been considered the key to the government's defense of the inland approach to Valencia.

Supporting the column aimed at Mora de Rubielos was the Fifth Navarrese division thrusting southward from El Pobo, northeast of Teruel, forming a defensive right wing for the forces that took Mount San Cristobal.

Screened by advance guards, the El Pobo force proceeded cautiously down a winding mountain trail, taking village after village without encountering much resistance.

The Navarrese were in a ticklish position, however, for on their flank, between them and rebel-held Teruel, the government was deployed before Escriche on a front ten trenches deep. Escriche is about ten miles northeast of Teruel.

Gen. Miguel Aranda, commanding both columns, was attempting the familiar rebel tactic of driving far ahead of the government positions into gaps in his enemy's line to force abandonment of fortifications without costly frontal attacks.

Large Loyalist Forces Trapped.

Retreat itself worked in the government's favor, for as the "militians" fell back their lines were shortened on the concave side of the "curving" front, permitting consolidation of man power.

Conversely, the rebel driving force was being weakened, for each step forward deployed the attackers further apart.

Reports from Saragossa said large government forces were trapped by the rebel infiltration strategy, particularly in the Sierra de Gudar.

The operations around Mount San Cristobal gave the rebels control of a network of communications near Montegudo and Cedillas.

Another Navarrese force, under Gen. Garcia Valino, deepened the rebel line near the coastal end of the Teruel to the sea line, moving toward Villafranca del Cid. He captured heights dominating the town, thirty miles inland, on a secondary highway to Albacete.

50,000 Taken Prisoners.

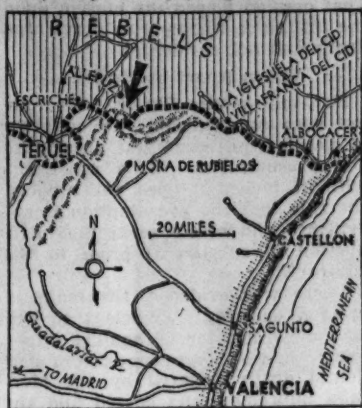

SARAGOSSA, Spain, May 15.—(P)—Rebel authorities announced today that more than 50,000 government soldiers had been taken prisoner in the Spanish civil war up to April 27.

These did not include prisoners who passed voluntarily into the rebel line but only those taken under arms, it was said.

Of the 50,000 captured before April 27, it was announced about 10,000 were prosecuted on assassination charges, 30,962 placed in labor battalions for road building and other public works, 6,997 employed in special services, and 45,885 held in concentration camps.

23 ARABS KILLED
IN BATTLE WITH BRITISH TROOPS

JERUSALEM, May 15.—(P)—British authorities announced today the death of twenty-three Arabs in a sharp engagement with British troops in northern Palestine.

British casualties were placed at one killed and one injured in the battle which took place yesterday.

The British called airplanes into action to machine gun the Arabs. The official announcement of the battle said the police party was ambushed by "rebels" while it was confiscating arms.

DIES IN PLUNGE FROM 11TH FLOOR ROOM OF HOTEL

A red haired man, who had registered as Dr. Morton Burch, a dentist, of Omaha, Neb., leaped to his death from his eleventh floor room in the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 826 South Wabash avenue, early today. His body landed on the third floor roof in the corridor of the building and was discovered by J. P. Lynch, a guest on the fourth floor.

Hotel records showed that the victim registered last Saturday and gave his Omaha street address as 1621 Harney street. No papers, notes, or other clues were found in his room. He was about 45 years old.

In Omaha it was said no man of the name is listed in any city or telephone directory and the address given is that of a downtown store.

ETHIOPIANS STILL FIGHTING ITALY,
HAILE'S AID SAYS

LONDON, May 15.—(P)—Haile Selassie, Ethiopia's exiled emperor, was described as "too sick in mind and body" today to attend a meeting he was scheduled to address here.

He fought in vain before the league of nations council last Thursday in Geneva against the move which was led by Great Britain and France for freeing league members from the obligation not to recognize Italy's 1935-36 conquest of Ethiopia.

Dr. Wargneh Martin, Ethiopian minister to the British government, substituted for the negus [emperor] on the move to the Westminster fellowship.

He declared: "It is absolutely true Ethiopians still are fighting and have regained a large part of their country." Denouncing Britain's about face on Italy's conquest, he added: "It is incomprehensible to me how a just judge could condemn a criminal's act one day and then make friends with him the next."

NAZI 'BIRTH BELL' GETS EXTRA PEAL;
IT'S FOR AUSTRIA

BERLIN, May 15.—(P)—This being German Mother's day, the men who control the pealing of the "birth bell" in an ornamental clock tower on the Doehnhofplatz decided it was time to count Austrian with German births in the ringing. Previously the bell rang 12 times every five minutes—once for each of 12 births every five minutes. Adding births of Austria last year to those of Germany, it was computed that 13 children were born every five minutes. Henceforth there will be 13 strokes.

BLACK'S FRIENDS RUSH TO DEFENSE OF LEGAL ABILITY

Try to Offset Effect of His Colleagues' Attacks.

BY CHESLEY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hugo Black.

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Smarting under charges purporting to emanate from some of his colleagues that Justice Hugo L. Black is incompetent for the work of the United States Supreme court, Black's friends are countering with the claim that single handed he forced that tribunal to overturn a 96 year old precedent and sweep aside the entire intervening body of federal common law.

In an opinion by Justice Louis D. Brandeis, the court did that very thing on April 25, in the case of the Erie Railroad company against Harry J. Tompkins, but a study of the record discloses that Black had nothing to do with it beyond concurring in the majority opinion.

Friends Rush to Defense.
However, friends of Justice Black, the former Ku Klux Klansman who was President Roosevelt's first Supreme court appointee, are contending that his lone dissenting opinion in the case of the New York Life Insurance company against Stella Jane Gerner, executrix of the will of E. Walter Gerner, decided last Feb. 14, resulted in the momentous Erie vs. Tompkins decision holding that there is no federal general common law; that in diversity of citizenship cases the federal courts must apply the common law of the states, as declared by their Supreme courts, in the absence of state statutory enactments.

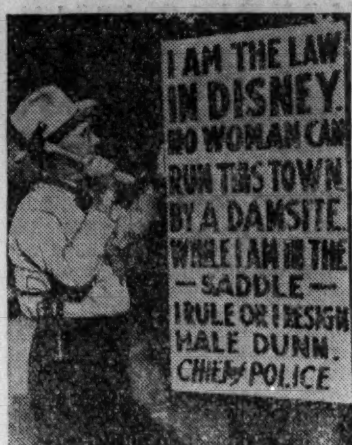

Justice Black's friends, particularly those of the radical press, were incensed by a magazine article in which Marquis Childs, writing "authoritatively," stated that Mr. Roosevelt's first appointee was causing his colleagues, both liberal and conservative, "acute discomfort and embarrassment" because of "a lack of legal knowledge and experience, deficiencies in background and training, that have led him into blunders which have shocked his colleagues on the highest court."

Chief Justice Fans Anger.
The indignation of Black partisans mounted when Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, in a speech strikingly reminiscent of the phraseology in the Childs article, deplored the "conspicuous ineptness" of certain judges and appealed to a vigilant bar to make certain the appointment of jurists "who are fitted by ability and character for the work of the courts."

The reply of Black's supporters, proclaimed by the radical press, was that the Erie vs. Tompkins decision attested his competence.

A study of the record, however, discloses how far-fetched is the

Sign of the Law

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Chief of Police Hale Dunn taking up sign serving notice that he will enforce laws of Disney, Okla., dam site.

Disney, Okla., May 15.—(AP)—The jig is up, the dam dictator has lost her crown, and law is in the saddle. This was the latest development growing out of the election four days ago of Miss Billy Baker, a former wild west show girl, as town boss for 30 days on a song-and-dance platform.

Respectable Hale Dunn, who became Disney's chief of police soon after work began here on the Grand river dam town, nailed a big sign on a tree in front of the city jail. "No woman can run this town by a damsite while I am in the saddle," it read. "I rule or I resign."

ory that Justice Black, by dissenting alone in one case, brought a majority of the court around to his point of view in another.

In the case in which Black was the lone dissenter, Gerner, a citizen of Montana, died by gunshot on April 30, 1933. His life was insured for $10,000 upon death by any cause and $20,000 upon death through external, violent, and accidental means. The executrix of his will sued for $20,000, while the insurance company contended that death resulted from self-destruction and that its liability was only $10,000. The jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $20,000 and the Supreme court, in an opinion delivered by Justice Pierce Butler [Black alone dissenting] reversed the judgment.

Black's Opinion Quoted.
In his dissenting opinion, Black wrote: "The Supreme court of Montana has said: 'Where, as here, death is shown as the result of external and violent means, and the issue is whether it was due to accident or suicide, the presumption is in favor of accident.'"

"In this case, the law determining the burden of proof as to suicide affects the substantial rights of the parties. Substantial rights arising from an insurance contract are governed by the law of the state where the contract was made. Since the court below instructed the jury in accordance with the law of Montana, I do not believe the charge constituted reversible error."

The majority opinion, delivered by Justice Butler, shows that the very rule for which Black was contending was applied, and that, in effect, he was dissenting from a man of straw, or shadow boxing. Accepting the decision of the Supreme court of Montana, Nichols vs. New York Life Insurance company, 88 Mont. 132, 140, which Black cited, the majority opinion said the rule of decision there declared was upheld by the United States court in Travellers Insurance Company vs. McConkey, 127 U. S. 661. That opinion placed the burden upon the insurance company to prove that death was not accidental.

Taken Apart by Butler.
But, said Justice Butler, "the opinion does not indicate the quantum of proof required to put an end to the presumption. It is consistent with, if indeed it does not support, the rule that the presumption is not evidence and ceases upon the introduction of substantial proof to the contrary."

There was evidence, the majority opinion declared, "sufficient to sustain a verdict for or against either party," hence the presumption of accidental death declared by the Montana Supreme court ceased and the plaintiff was not entitled to mandatory instructions to the jury.

The outcome of this case, therefore, would not be changed by the Supreme court's subsequent decision in the Erie vs. Tompkins case. In that case the court overturned the historic precedent of Swift vs. Tyson, in which Justice Joseph Story, speaking for the court in 1842, declared that, in the absence of state statutes, the federal courts were free to exercise their independent judgment as to what the general common law was or should be; that they need not be bound by rules of decisions declared by the state courts.

Sensation in Legal Ranks.
The case of Erie vs. Tompkins, in which Justices Butler, James Clark McReynolds, and Stanley F. Reed concurred in the result, but dissented in varying degrees as to the reasons therefor, has created a sensation among judges, lawyers, professors of law, and legal students.

One of the dissenting justices privately expressed the opinion that the case was more remarkable for its historical interest than for its effect on the national jurisprudence, for the reason that the federal general common law, as the term implies, was the prevailing law of the land, varying little from the common law of the various states. Both had their origin in the common law of England. The federal rules of decision will be changed, as a result of Erie vs. Tompkins, only with respect to state common law, which is peculiarly local.

The history making opinion grew out of an obscure damage suit. Tompkins, a citizen of Pennsylvania, was injured on a dark night by a passing freight train while walking along the railroad right of way. He was struck by something which looked like a door projecting from one of the cars. Alleging negligence on the part of the railroad, he brought suit in a New York federal District court.

Question Often Raised.
Tompkins contended that, since there was no Pennsylvania statute on the subject, the railroad's liability was to be determined in federal court as a matter of general law. The Erie court contended that under the common law of Pennsylvania, as declared by its highest court, persons who use longitudinal pathways along railroad rights of way are trespassers.

The trial judge refused to rule that the applicable law prevented recovery, and the jury brought in a verdict for $30,000.

"The question for decision," said the starting first sentence of the Brandeis opinion, "is whether the oft challenged doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson shall now be disapproved." The case turned upon construction of section 34 of the federal judiciary act of Sept. 24, 1789, which, incidentally, was the first bill introduced in the United States senate. Section 34 provides: "The laws of the several states, except where the constitution, treaties, or statutes of the United States otherwise required or provided, shall be regarded as rules of decision in trials at common law, in courts of the United States, in cases where they apply."

Justice Story and the Supreme court without exception thereafter until last April 25 limited the term "laws of the several states" to the positive statutes of the states and the construction thereof adopted by the local tribunals.

Refers to Newly Found Data.
Justice Brandeis, however, referred in the footnotes of his opinion to researches by Charles Warren, historian of the court and former assistant attorney general of the United States, which were deemed to throw new light on the judiciary act of 1789.

Delving into long forgotten, dust laden documents in the attic of the capitol, Mr. Warren unearthed not only the original draft of the judiciary bill but also an amendment in the handwriting of its author, Senator Oliver Ellsworth of Connecticut. The original draft had declared that "the statute law of the several states . . . shall be regarded as rules of decision" etc. Striking out the term "statute law," Senator Ellsworth substituted the word "laws." The opinion of Mr. Warren, to which the majority opinion of the Supreme court subscribed, was that "laws" embraced not only statutory enactments but common law decisions.

Justices Butler and McReynolds do not accept this theory. They believe that the word "statute" was eliminated because it was superfluous; that Justice Story was right when he construed "laws" to mean statutes only, and that had Senator Ellsworth wished to comprehend common law as declared by local tribunals, as well as statutes, he would have used the generic term "law" instead of the restricted word "laws."

Agrees with Justice Holmes.
Anyway, Justice Brandeis declared, "Congress has no power to declare substantive rules of common law applicable in a state whether they be local in their nature or general."

He agreed with a dissenting opinion of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that the doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson was "an unconstitutional assumption of powers by courts of the United States. If Congress has no power under the constitution to invade such fields by statute, then the courts cannot do so by an application of general law. The judiciary act was not unconstitutional, but the course pursued by the federal courts was."

Even Justice Reed was mildly astonished by the majority opinion. He did not believe the doctrine of Swift vs. Tyson to be unconstitutional, but simply wrong.

The effect of the new doctrine declared in Erie vs. Tompkins is indicated to some extent by the fate of Tompkins. He lost, as he would have in either case. The majority opinion applied the common law of Pennsylvania, while Justices Butler and McReynolds would have applied the general law, which in this case happened to be the same.

There will, however, be many exceptions in cases where state common law is peculiarly local. Also, the new doctrine will apply in equity cases, such as suits for injunctions and receiverships.

CHARGES LEWIS RIDES 2 HORSES IN PENN DERBY

Judge Says He Backs Both
G. O. P. and Democrats.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 15.—[Special.]—John L. Lewis, czar of the Committee for Industrial Organization, was pictured tonight as riding two horses in the Pennsylvania primary, with a candidate for governor in both the Democratic and the Republican camp. The election is Tuesday.

The charge was made by Superior Judge Arthur H. James, who is opposing Gifford Pinchot for the Republican nomination for governor. James accused Lewis of aiding Pinchot secretly while openly supporting Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, secretary treasurer of the United Mine Workers, for the gubernatorial nomination on the Democratic side.

Receives Lewis Support.
Pinchot, twice elected governor, has received support from Lewis and his mine workers in previous campaigns. In addition, Pinchot's wife, Cornelia, has appeared in C. I. O. picket lines. James attacked Lewis for levying on the miners a $2 assessment for his own political advancement.

Meanwhile the feud between the two factions in the Democratic party went on unabated, with both sides accusing the other of plotting vote stealing and intimidation at the polls.

Guffey Asks Investigation.
Senator Joseph F. Guffey, who is backing a ticket against the state headed by Gov. George H. Earle, has asked the senate elections committee at Washington to investigate the primary.

Guffey charged that his opponents were making frantic efforts to steal the election in Philadelphia. At the same time Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia urged both senate and house elections committees to send observers to the polls here. Wilson is Guffey's candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination against Earle.

On the other hand leaders in the Earle camp are charging that Guffey plans to use the Works Progress administration as a political machine.

Philadelphia the Prize.
Philadelphia, with more than 400,000 registered Democrats, is the prize which both sides are seeking. Gov. Earle and his running mate for governor, Charles Alvin Jones, a Pittsburgh lawyer, expect to sweep Philadelphia through the help of the local machine headed by John B. Kelly and Matthew W. McCloskey, the state's most favored contractor and money lender to the governor.

The Philadelphia mayor and Lieut. Kennedy, are counting on a tide of public resentment against the scandals uncovered in the Earle administration to cut down the lead here.

HITS 'FUMBLING' SLUMP ALIBI OF ADMINISTRATION

Bacon Assails Failure to Admit Mistakes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., May 15.—[Special.]—Representative Robert L. Bacon [R. N. Y.] today answered President Roosevelt's denial of the failure of business "pump priming" up to date with advice to administration leaders to get together on their alibis for the depression.

Mr. Bacon was one of the signers of the house appropriations committee minority report on the Roosevelt 5 billion dollar spending program in which it was contended that the current depression is proof of the fallacy of attempting to spend our way to prosperity. Mr. Roosevelt retorted at his Friday press conference that pump priming had not been a failure, asserting that its beneficial operation had merely been interfered with by unscrupulous practices on the part of business men. The resulting high prices and inflated inventories largely accounted for the new depression, the President said.

Statements at Variance.

Now Mr. Bacon points out that the President's assessment of blame for the depression contradicts the speech Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau made before the Academy of Political Science in New York on Nov. 10 last. Mr. Morgenthau said that the 1937 level of business activity "has been of a healthy character—not of the character that usually marks an unhealthy boom and precedes a serious depression." Then he added that "the present situation is not characterized by the existence of huge inventories." He went on to say that "conditions are favorable for a continued increase in the level of business activity."

With the senate appropriations committee beginning hearings tomorrow on the new Roosevelt pump priming bill passed by the house the Republicans and conservative Democrats are grudging for an attempt to eliminate the billion dollar public works spending project from the measure and also to earmark relief and pump priming funds in such manner as to restrict the power of the President in the allocation of expenditures.

Oppose Political Spending.

Through unrestricted power of the executive to allocate funds the administration, it is contended, is enabled to employ billions of dollars to aid the return to congress of senators and representatives who take orders from the White House and defeat recalcitrants.

"In the same fumbling and contradictory manner in which the New Deal has conducted the federal government for the last five years, the Roosevelt administration is now attempting to alibi the economic depression which descended on the country a few months ago," said Mr. Bacon.

"Such alibis are to be expected, since the President stubbornly refuses to admit the errors of his past policies, but insists that the country continue down what he termed earlier in 1933 'the road to bankruptcy.'"

"The people of this country are not interested in alibis. They want constructive action that will restore the 12 million unemployed men and women to jobs in private enterprise. But since the New Dealers seem to think they must alibi their actions they at least should get together on one story and, if that is not asking too much, stick to it. They have been so desperate to save their faces that over the week-end they have given us several alibis—which contradict each other and which find no support in their previous explanations."

Blames Roosevelt Policies.
"Obviously replying to the exposure of the demonstrated failure of the New Deal 'pump priming' theory in the report of the minority of the house appropriations committee last week, the President at his Friday press conference asserted that spending had not failed. Since he cannot deny the depression which overwhelms the country he followed his usual tactics of blaming business for it."

"Business, he said, had run away with the ball. But did not Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Solicitor General Jackson tell us in December that business caused the depression by going on a sitdown strike? This is the best New Deal form. Business, big and little, always is to be blamed."

"The President had another idea about the depression. He said that heavy inventories and high prices were at the bottom of it. I do not propose to argue economic technicalities with the President, but every economist knows that in a freely functioning economic system heavy inventories and high prices do not go together. If Mr. Roosevelt finds them together then it is because of the restrictive and inflationary policies which he has pursued.

Calls Policy Senseless.

"As the President deplored heavy inventories as a serious problem and talked about the evil of high prices, John W. Hanes, his SEC commissioner, whom he has just promoted to be assistant secretary of the treasury, comes forth with a scheme for RFC guarantee of bank loans on inventories. Such a scheme would have the effect of freezing inventories and keeping prices high. It would perpetuate the evil of which the President complains. The President's observations and the Hanes scheme together do not make sense."

"Nor does it make sense to talk about freezing inventories, planning production by governmental edict, and increasing prices in the same breath in which monopoly and high prices are attacked."

"A few hours after the President uttered his observations his chairman of the federal reserve board, Marriner Eccles, addressed the New Jersey bankers. He was more candid than the President in discussing the causes of the depression. He admitted the New Deal had made mistakes. In effect he confessed to mismanagement of the previous spending programs."

KILLS OIL MAN; BLAMES ACT ON 'DOUBLE CROSS'

Victim Shot Down in Bar by Ex-Associate.

Clare, Mich., May 15.—[Special.]—William Livingston, once a wealthy oil field operator here and in the Texas panhandle, attempted to explain today why he shot and killed Isiah Leebow last night in the barroom of the Doherty hotel here.

Leebow, a wealthy oil promoter, was Arrow points to scene of killing.

"Leebow double-crossed me and ruined me mentally, morally, and financially," Livingston, who is 41 and single, told Sheriff George Bates in the Clare county jail in Harrison. "We have had a long-time feud."

Goes Home for Revolver.

But what the feud was about and how Leebow ruined him Livingston did not say. Witnesses said Livingston, after glimpsing Leebow in the barroom, went home, and got a revolver and fired five shots at the oil man who was seated and talking with Byron Geller, a former assistant state's attorney general, who was slightly wounded by one of the bullets.

"Did I get him?" Livingston asked after he had surrendered. Leebow, 43 years old and married, brought Livingston to Michigan from Texas in 1929 and for five years Livingston was the lease expert for Leebow, who was making a reputation as a criminal lawyer in New York as well as making a fortune here in oil operations.

Leebow was attorney for Jack (Lep) Diamond, Owney Madden, and Arnold Rothstein, and in 1932 represented Irving Blitz and Salvatore Spitalo, who volunteered to act as go-betweens in ransoming the kidnapped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. About that time he was reported to have won $60,000 shooting craps with a client, Nick the Greek Dandolos.

resident of Michigan and the close friend and adviser of William A. Comstock, who became governor of Michigan in 1932. Leebow was reported to have contributed heavily to two of Comstock's campaigns.

His influence over the governor made him many enemies in Michigan and a legislative committee reported: "Leebism in Michigan has caused scandal and suspicion in our state government." Leebow's influence with the governor was said to have been responsible for the granting of many paroles.

MOVIE OPERATOR MISSING A WEEK; SEEK GEM CLEWS

Rogers Park police turned to the jewelry possessions of Henry Schneider last night in an effort to solve his strange disappearance.

Henry Schneider.

Schneider, 41 years old, a motion picture operator at the Adelphi theater, 7074 North Clark street, has been missing since last Monday. He lived in a hotel at 64 West Schiller street.

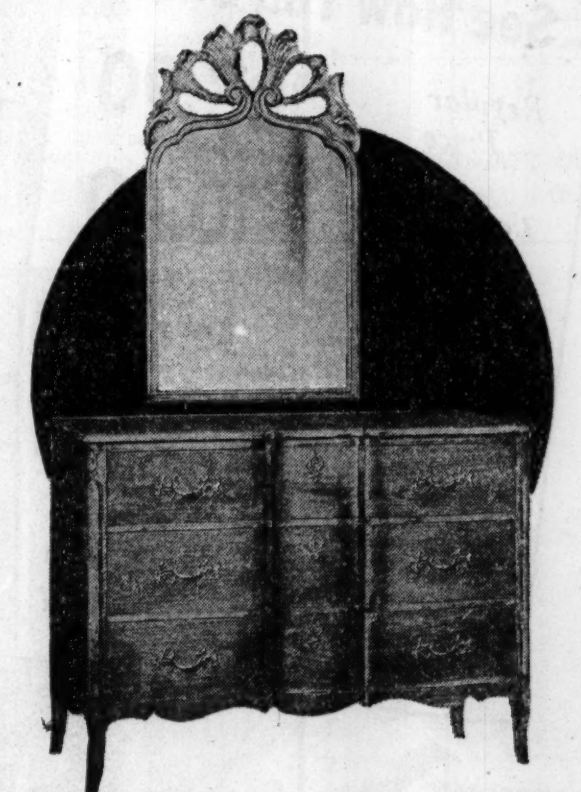

Detectives Tiff P. Constant and Norman Gollos said Schneider had a penchant for diamond jewelry, and that on March 1 he insured six pieces for $3,455. Included was a ring with a 4.5 carat diamond, insured for $2,650. In recent months, the detectives said, he had been trying to raffle a diamond-sapphire ring, valued at $650, in a tavern at 1424 North Clark street.

Friends have expressed fear that Schneider was kidnaped by robbers attracted by his jewelry.

TOWN LIGHTS TO BE OUT DURING 'ENEMY' AIR RAID

Mitchell Field, N. Y., May 15.—[Special.]—Three blasts on the Farmingdale fire department's siren tomorrow night will herald the first "black out" ever to be tried in the United States.

While 3,000 officers and men of the army's general headquarters air force rested here and at other fields today, the 8,000 residents of Farmingdale and of the country within two and one-half miles of the town made their final preparations for the "bombing raid" that is to be the climax of the army's four day aerial war game.

The "raid" is to be made on the Seversky Aircraft factory by three twin-engined camouflaged Douglas bombers. More than 3,000 circulars have been distributed to the Farmingdale residents telling them of the experiment and asking their cooperation in keeping the area completely dark during the raid.

Hollanderized

AT FIELD'S

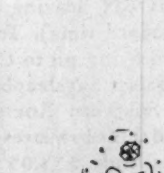

No glamorous beauty being groomed for a picture could have more done for her! When you say "Have it Hollanderized" your coat's in for glorification!

If you're interested in words, "Hollanderizing" is named for A. Hollander & Son, world's largest dressers and dyers of furs, who perfected the process. If you're interested in results, you'll applaud this perfection. Because what these Hollanderizing people don't know about pelts and linings and their reactions just isn't worth knowing.

Like the most skillful "facial" is the cleaning, spotting, sizing your coat's lining gets. Like the most thorough "work out" is the brisk rattan beating and the blowing given the fur itself. Like the most delicate "makeup" is the glazing done by cloth-swathed irons expertly swung.

Nor does any beautician select materials with greater care. The grades and meshes of fresh sawdust—some coarse, some soft as face powder—whirled in padded drums to clean your coat, are from Hollander's own mill. The secret fluids in bottle, jar and flask, to remove spots from your coat's lining, are the result of years of research. Everything is special. Special brushes—of bristles or lamb's wool . . . special sprays . . . special glazing sticks . . . even special cheesecloth! And very special operators—for many of the processes are life trades in themselves—and inspection is pitiless, all along the line.

Where other cleaning stops—Hollanderizing begins! Yet it costs no more than ordinary cleaning, and often less. Give your coat this beauty treatment to make it preen and strut. Even if it's new this year, send it down for this revitalizing of the fur, and renewing of the lining's luster. So when you send it to Field's for Storage be sure to add, "I want it Hollanderized, too."

Call State 1000 and ask for Fur Storage or leave your order in the Fur Salon, Sixth Floor, or in the Suburban Stores.

position 150 feet above roof level, nose headed into the wind. He closed his throttle and the giro began to sink. Over the southern edge of the roof a wild current of air caught and tossed the ship. By this time Miller was down between the two pent-houses on the roof. The giro straightened itself under his hand and settled smoothly.

Drops Gently on Roof.

Seeing he was settling short of the mat, 50 feet wide by 60 feet long—about as large an area as a suburban front lawn—Miller blasted his engine twice. Then, to the accompaniment of a ringing and spontaneous "Hurrah" from the observers, he dropped the plane gently on the plates. There was no roll.

"It was not hard," grinned Miller to Postmaster Ernest J. Krueger and others who swarmed round the plane. "Only once did I hit a bump and that wasn't so bad. I misjudged a little and had to drag the ship onto the mat with the engine."

As the cameras of newspaper and newsreel photographers clicked the pouches were removed. A gentle rain and a few hailstones began to fall. In the downpour Miller, who had been sworn as a regular mail carrier, signed a cargo manifest. The outgoing pouches were loaded aboard and the cockpit cover latched home.

"Let's go," said Miller. "I've got to beat this storm to the airport." At 2:05 p. m. Miller whirled the giro on one wheel and taxied fifty feet south of the mat. There he started the rotor blades whirling again—they had been stopped for the unloading ceremonies—and turned for the run down the roof and the takeoff.

The engine roared and the giro started forward. Halfway across the landing mat the front wheels lifted clear and immediately the plane began a steep climb. Over the northern end of the postoffice he was 100 feet above roof level. Miller dived twice across the roof for the benefit of the news reel men and then headed southwest toward the airport.

The rain and hail struck the field as he appeared out of a black cloud to the northeast. Oblivious of the downpour and pelting ice which drove the watchers into the airport terminal building, Miller settled vertically to a position on the cement ramp. He disclaimed to use a runway.

Repairs Smashed Rotor Blade.

Afterward Miller confessed that a nap of two hours was all the sleep he obtained during the thirty-six hours prior to the flight. He had been laboring with Kellett mechanics and woodworking experts from the Howard Aircraft factory at 5301 65th street to repair damage consisting of a smashed rotor blade and a splintered tail plane. The damage was done Friday evening after a practice flight.

A preliminary examination indicated that it would be impossible to have the ship ready in time for the flight. But Miller and Kellett refused to give up. A new set of three rotor blades—balanced with each other at the Kellett factory, Philadelphia, were ordered aboard a fast passenger train. Miller appealed to Ben O. Howard, head of the Howard company, to rebuild the tail plane.

The men at the Howard plant worked Saturday and all Saturday night to make a perfect job of repairs on the plane. It was finally approved early yesterday by Ora Young, supervising inspector for the bureau of air commerce, under whose guidance the landing test was conducted.

Ready Just in Time.

The new rotor blades arrived at Union station at 7:10 a. m. Miller and a truck were waiting. They hoisted the 1,000 pound special shipping box protecting the new blades into the waiting machine and drove to the Monarch hangar on the flying field at 8 o'clock.

Kellett mechanics and engineers had already removed the damaged blade and its mates. The work of installing the new set was begun immediately. Not until 1 p. m. hardly half an hour before the landing test

Comparison of the status of American railroads in April, 1932, with the indicated months of 1938.

An indication of what the nation's railroads are up against in the way of rising taxes, higher wages, and falling net operating revenues, as compared with conditions six years ago, is shown in figures made public by the Association of American Railroads.

In April, 1932, the railroads' tax bill for the month was $25,255,960. In March, 1938, the latest month for which reports are available, the total of taxes was $28,620,390, the association said. Net operating income fell from $20,623,929 in April, 1932, to $14,470,447 in March, 1938, and the revenue per ton mile for the respective periods was 1.09 cents and 0.94 cent. Carloadings in April, 1932, totaled 2,217,614, against 2,126,405 last April, and wages in same 1932 month were $132,704,019, compared with $136,799,239 in February, 1938, the association's figures showed.

Having received only about a third of the freight rate increase of 15 per cent recently sought in hearings before the interstate commerce commission, the railroads have notified the labor brotherhoods of intention to cut wages 15 per cent, effective July 1, but it is not expected that the issue will have been fought out before next fall.

imum expenditure, Harrington declared.

Under the 1930 traction plan, the State street subway was to be a four track tunnel with a mezzanine shopping level. The cost of that structure would have been more than double the 19 to 20 million dollars estimated expenditure to build the two track tunnel now contemplated.

The present plans do not provide a mezzanine level. On the other hand, the program contemplates no special assessments against abutting property as the earlier plan proposed.

Stores Pay for Entrances.

Harrington said the new plans do not provide direct entrances to State street stores. He added that it will be possible to include them when the subway is built but the stores asking for the connections will have to pay the entire cost of them.

The engineer explained additional features of the subway plans. With three minor exceptions, he said, the construction can be done without interference with abutting property. The Jackson and Washington street tubes can be built between the sidewalks of those streets.

The State street subway from Chicago avenue to 13th street likewise will be constructed below the roadway without interfering with abutting property. It will be necessary, Harrington said, to pass under private property at the southwest corner of Chicago avenue and State street in making a curve into Chicago avenue.

Again at Chicago avenue and Franklin streets, where the tube will emerge from the ground and join the elevated, private property will have to be used. The same is true where a connection with the south side elevated at 14th street.

Tunnel 50 Feet Wide.

The engineering specifications show that the State street subway will require a tunnel 50 feet wide from Randolph to Harrison streets. There will be eight stations on each side of the street in this stretch of the subway with continuous loading platforms on each side over the eight blocks.

The rest of the tunnel, except at other stations, will be 30 feet wide. The bottom of the tunnel will be about 25 feet below the street level and the loading platforms about 18 feet below the sidewalks.

The two street car subways will be much deeper. The bottom of these low level structures will be about 42 feet under the surface and the loading platforms 38 feet down. The tubes will be 35 feet wide. The stations in the street car subways will have me-

EXPECT HORNER'S AID FOR LAWS TO ENLARGE AIRPORT

Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel, expressed confidence yesterday that Gov. Horner would include in a call for a special session of the legislature the legislation needed by Chicago to effect its airport expansion program. Grossman submitted the city's plans to the governor's legal advisers in Springfield last week.

The aid of the legislature is needed to remove the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad from their present location along 59th street, west of Cicero avenue. Relaying the tracks farther north, along 55th street, would make the land between 55th and 59th streets, from Cicero avenue to Central avenue, available for the airport.

"If the governor cooperates with the legislation may be passed and become effective July 1," Mr. Grossman said. "Meanwhile the city council will be working on a new ordinance to be passed after the new laws would be operative."

Naval Plane, Short of Fuel, Forced to Land on Ocean

Miami, Fla., May 15.—(AP)—A navy patrol plane with six men aboard became separated from a dozen sister craft on a nonstop flight from the Canal Zone to Miami early today and, short of fuel, landed at sea alongside the steamship Cities Service Toledo. Commander W. K. Berner, in charge of the squadron, said the craft was undamaged. One of the planes completing the flight took off again with fuel for the machine. Both were expected at Miami tonight. Commander Berner blamed the forced landing on fog and failure of the craft's radio apparatus.

EVANSTON MUSIC FESTIVAL OPENS TUESDAY EVENING

Artists of High Distinction to Appear in Series.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
Beautiful music, presented in a beautiful setting by artists of high distinction.

Such is the service and such the opportunity which the Evanston Music festival annually contributes to Chicago's calendar of events that enrich existence.

The four concerts of this year's festival—the twenty-sixth in an illustrious series—will be given on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon of this week in the Patten gymnasium on Northwestern university's campus.

There will be seats for 3,000 persons, and, as a result of the erection last year of a huge sounding board, no seat is a bad seat.

Prices range from $3.50 to $12 for the four programs.

Vital N. U. Art Tradition.

Founded in 1909, this festival has become the most beautiful and vital art tradition of Northwestern university, under whose auspices it is given, and it now ranks as one of the most notable brief festivals given in the western world.

A glance down the list of composers represented and artists participating in the four programs instantly gives the tremendous comprehensiveness and splendor of the festival.

Musical directors for the week are Frederick Stock, Hans Lange, and John W. Beattie. Instrumental and vocal bodies participating are the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Northwestern University Festival chorus of 600 voices, which has been steadily rehearsing for four months; the Northwestern A Cappella choir, and the children's chorus of 1,200 voices.

To contemplate the list of composers and individual artists to be presented from night to night is to be dazzled.

A Pageant of Melody.

Thus the pageant of melody moves: Tuesday night—Works of Verdi, Berlioz, Bizet, Glazounov, and Honegger, presented by these guest artists: Agnes Davis, Bruno Castagna, mezzo-soprano from the Metropolitan Opera house, who now makes her Chicago debut; William Miller, and Mark Love.

Thursday night—Bach, Wagner, and Brahms, presented by Agnes Davis, Richard Crooks, and Julius Huehn. Saturday afternoon—Tchaikowsky, Nicolai, Vieuxtemps, and Elgar, presented by the children's chorus, with Robert Basso as violin soloist.

Saturday night—Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, Verdi, Wagner, Gounod, Paganini, Charpentier, Dohányi, Noelle, and Elgar, presented by Helen Jepson, Giovanni Martinelli, and Julius Huehn.

If that list—which is printed here merely as an at-a-glance lure—does not represent a noble comprehensiveness, then there is no such thing as building programs with "something for everybody" in them. The festival is, in truth, a one week's schooling in the best music, and as such it is unduplicated in Chicago's musical calendar.

Founded by Music Dean.

The Evanston Music festival, which would more properly be called Northwestern university's music festival, was founded in 1909 by the late Peter Christian Lutkin, then dean of Northwestern's school of music. It moved forward with growing splendor for twenty-four years. After the festival of 1932 there was a lapse of four years, owing to the depression. But last year the festival was resumed as a result of the tireless efforts of Edwin S. Mills, American industrialist and an Evanstonian who, loving Evanston and loving music, felt that for the glory of Evanston and the university, and as a service to the cause of fine music, the festival tradition must be restored. He organized a group of guarantors, and he and they succeeded in making the grand old tradition again a living factor in American musical culture.

The festival is not a profit making venture. Once it had a surplus of $15,000, but the years of depressions devoured that. With this spring it begins the second year of its new start.

PAINTER ROBBED OF $180.

Fillmore Hill, 4520 Clifton avenue, a painter, was robbed of $180 last night by four young men in an alley behind 614 North Halsted street.

Debut Tomorrow

(Story in adjoining column.)

Mme. Castagna, leading contralto of New York's Metropolitan Opera company, will make her Chicago debut tomorrow evening at the Evanston Music festival. She will sing two arias from "Carmen," and will also be heard with Agnes Davis in a duet from the second act of "Aida."

SEEK TO REDUCE ACCIDENT TOLL IN FIRST AID WEEK

A campaign to educate adults and children in methods of administering first aid was launched yesterday with the opening of the seventeenth annual national first aid week. The week is sponsored by the National Association of Retail Druggists. Public officials, churches, and schools are cooperating in the campaign to cut the annual death toll by "everyday accidents."

Four new highway emergency first aid stations of the American Red Cross were in use yesterday, raising the total operated by the Chicago chapter to thirty-five. The new locations are the Elmhurst police station, the village hall of Addison, the Ontarioville garage at Ontarioville, and the fire station at Bartlett. Police and firemen in the different towns have taken courses in first aid treatment.

2,000 DEMOCRATIC WOMEN MEET IN CHICAGO TODAY

Two thousand Democratic women from seven states in the Great Lakes region will open a two day regional convention on governmental policies in the Palmer house today. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Democratic committee woman from Illinois, is in charge of local arrangements.

Round table discussions will be held on foreign policies, housing programs, social welfare and party affairs. A main theme of the convention will be "Know Your Government."

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, Miss Grace Abbott, Mrs. Mabel Bass, Mrs. May Thompson Evans, and Dr. Marguerite Fertz. Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, will broadcast a talk from Washington tomorrow.

SEIZED IN WIFE'S DEATH.

Freeport, Ill., May 15.—(Special.)—Sefarim Calderon, 45 years old, a railroad laborer, was arrested today after his wife, who is the mother of eleven children, was found dead with two bullet wounds in her chest.

THE SIMPLE LIFE

By CALEB

"WHAT ON earth are you doing—watering those dandelions one at a time?"

I stood at the edge of my neighbor's yard, watching him squirting liquid laboriously from a long-spouted oil can into the exact middle of each dandelion plant growing in his not inconsiderable yard.

"Anyhow," I continued, "why does anybody water dandelions—either singly or in groups?"

My neighbor paused, straightened up with a grimace of pain, and favored me with a look tinged, I thought, with a slight contempt.

"This isn't water, it's gasoline," he said shortly. "I'm not taking care of these plants. I'm killing 'em." And he returned to his task of squirting gasoline at the exact center of each plant.

My neighbor is a reasonable man, and when I approached him later as he sat on the porch viewing the scene of his earlier labors, he told me the story of this strange excursion into floriculture.

"Like almost everybody else, I've tried all sorts of fancy methods for getting rid of dandelions," he began. "I've bought special forks and knives to dig 'em out with. The dandelions always seem to come up again. I've tried chemicals, formulas, and nostrums galore to no purpose.

"Well, the other day I found a book that said to take an old oil can, fill it with gasoline, and squirt some in the middle of each plant. I did, and it worked on the first batch I did last week. It's as simple as that!

"You know what I think?" he said, hitching his chair forward on the porch. "I think that while complicated formulas and devices are sometimes necessary, we attach too much importance to them when we have something to get done. We're looking for easy short cuts more than we are for results. If we'd get down to some of the old essentials our dads used to operate with, we'd get further. After trying a lot of complicated tricks I've killed my dandelions by doing a simple and obvious thing. But I saved it until last because it involved hard work."

I'm not sure my neighbor has killed all of his dandelions. But he has made a lot of headway, and his philosophy seems sound. Here in the store we've never found any new and better formula for service than the old and simple one of finding out what people want—and having it. It's as simple as that!

13 ARE INJURED IN THREE-WAY AUTO COLLISION

Victims Young; 3 Girls Taken to Hospitals.

Thirteen young men and women, ten of them high school students, were injured early yesterday in a collision between three automobiles at 67th street and Kedzie avenue. Three of the girls were taken to hospitals.

They are Marion Casey, 1504 West 104th street; Dorothy Aiken, 16611 Church street, and Janet Wilson, 8211 Calumet avenue. All are high school students. The others were not injured seriously.

Seven of the injured were riding with Roger Burke, 10136 South Hoyne avenue. Four were riding with Frank Wilson, 8211 Calumet avenue. Lester Bridgeman, 6343 Blackstone avenue, driver of the third car, was uninjured.

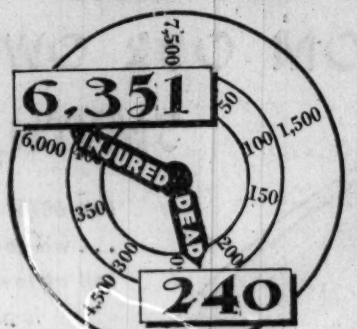

Chicago Lawn police said Bridgeman tried to pass Burke's car. Both were traveling east in 67th street. In so doing, police said, Bridgeman's car sidwiped Wilson's, which was westbound, and then swerved against the Burke machine.

Unidentified Woman Killed.
An unidentified woman was killed last night and her little child, a girl 3 years old, was injured when they were struck by an automobile at 33d place and Halsted street. Louis Vayda, 34, 1704 Newberry street, the driver, took them to the St. Paul Emergency hospital, where the woman was found to be dead and the girl suffering from a nose fracture. The child was so hysterical she could not give her name. The woman was about 45 years old. Deering street police believe she lived in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Theresa Vogt, 59 years old, mother of Policeman Clarence Vogt of the Sheffield avenue station, was fatally injured last night when she was pinned beneath an automobile which ran onto the sidewalk and overturned at Ogden avenue and Menominee street. The driver was George Melnik, 21, of 1800 North Wells street, who was arrested. He said another car had cut him off as he attempted to turn, causing the accident.

Martin Bola, 67 years old, of 716 North May street, died yesterday in the North avenue hospital of injuries incurred Saturday when he walked into the side of an automobile driven by Paul Motenko, 908 North Mozart street.

Three men were injured, two probably fatally, early today when their automobile rammed into a street car at 14th street and Damen avenue. Half a dozen street car passengers were jolted. Those seriously hurt are Edward Zater, 22 years old, 2307 Cullerton street, and Zeno Grodecki, 21, of 2659 West 18th street. They suffered skull fractures.

They were driving north with William Gnat, 23, of 2147 West 18th place, when the street car, southbound, made a left turn from Damen avenue into 14th street. Zater, who was driving, crashed into the side of the car. Gnat also was hurt and was taken with Zater and Grodecki to the County hospital.

Bicycle Rider Fatally Hurt.
Paul Madsen, 15 years old, 730 Elm street, Winnetka, was fatally injured last night when he was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile in Green Bay road, at Greenwood avenue, in Winnetka. The driver, R. C. Anderson, 119 Linden avenue, Glencoe, took Madsen to the Evanston hospital, where he died. Anderson told police that the boy's bicycle had no tail light, and that he did not see him until too late.

Madsen was riding with another boy, Herbert Leggett, 16, of 231 Church street, Winnetka, at the time of the accident. Leggett was not injured. While chasing a speeder in Ashland avenue, Motorcycle Policeman Joseph Barry was injured when another car turned into the boulevard at Archer avenue. Joseph Lozinski, 3214 South Aberdeen street, driver of the car, was questioned but not held.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 311 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 240 were killed in Chicago, where 6,276 were injured in the same period.

BRITAIN WORRIED OVER OIL SUPPLY IN CASE OF WAR

Split with Mexico Stirs Fears in London.

LONDON, May 15.—(AP)—The British government, already deeply concerned over the European and far eastern situations, today considered warily what course to adopt toward its new North American worry—ruptured diplomatic relations with Mexico.

Viscount Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary, began study of the problem after returning from Geneva where he engineered the British about-face to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

The foreign office declined comment on the Mexican situation or any intimation of what the next step might be. But one important factor in the situation from the British standpoint will be consideration of her oil supply if war should come.

May Need South American Oil.
Britain might have to depend principally on South and Central American fuel in wartime, an eventuality for the government to consider in seeking means of preventing further embitterment of British-Mexican relations.

Mexico in the past has furnished Britain only 6 per cent of her oil imports, a quantity that totaled 176,000,000 gallons in 1936, but war would increase that amount.

The reason is that in peace time the British get about 18 per cent of their oil from Iran (Persia) and 5 per cent from Iraq. Most of this oil is piped thousands of miles along lines that could be disrupted quickly. Informal sources said Britain thus might be forced to convey almost her entire oil supply across the Atlantic.

Britain hopes, if she fails to regain control of the expropriated properties, to be able to buy Mexican oil supplies, though thus far she has boycotted Mexican oil in an effort to get back her holdings.

Failing this, Britain probably will call on the United States, which now furnishes 10 per cent of her supply.

DEAN H. W. MUMFORD, WIFE IN HOSPITAL AFTER CAR CRASH

Champaign, Ill., May 15.—(Special.)—Herbert W. Mumford, dean of the college of agriculture at the University of Illinois, who was seriously injured last night when his auto was struck by another car, tonight was reported to be holding his own.

The condition of Mrs. Mumford, who also was injured in the accident, was reported good.

Both are in Burnham City hospital. Woodrow Seward, driver of the other car, was injured slightly.

Cardenas in support of his diplomatic rupture with Great Britain.

The congress of the Revolutionary [government] party, the confederation of Mexican workers and other labor organizations joined in declaring themselves behind Cardenas and his "Mexico for Mexicans" program.

The majority bloc in the chamber of deputies described the break as "absolutely justified" in view of Britain's "insolent" attitude.

In a sharply worded statement, the Revolutionary party said the "meddling Britain attempted was in every sense intolerable."

START FINAL JOB ON 47TH STREET SUBWAY TODAY

Paving of the west approach and surface of the 47th street subway under the Illinois Central railroad tracks will begin today. The job is the final link in the major subway project which will be completed at a cost of $1,098,000 by June 20, according to George T. Donoghue, park district superintendent.

The subway extends east from Lake Park avenue to the outer drive and, when completed, will afford motorists easy access to the lake front. A bridge over the outer drive and a viaduct at the west end of the project already have been completed and the 47th street car tracks have been extended to within several feet of the outer drive.

MEXICAN TROOPS PEN 'STRONG MAN' WITHIN HIS STATE

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 15.—(AP)—Three thousand troops were held in barracks here today to see that Gen. Saturnino Cedillo and his armed agrarians kept the peace.

Five thousand more were scattered out through the long, strategically important state of which this city is the capital.

Carrisons were heavily reinforced around the Las Palomas estate of Cedillo, who is called the "strong man of San Luis Potosi" and has been President Lazaro Cardenas' opponent since his resignation last August as minister of agriculture.

A tense city and state, under virtual martial law, waited anxiously to see whether yesterday's rumors that "Cedillistas" were preparing an uprising would prove to be false.

Detachments of soldiers were stationed inside banks and public buildings. Streets were patrolled last night and houses of the "Cedillista" leaders were searched for arms.

C. Y. O. OFFICIALS OF U. S., CANADA MEET TOMORROW

Catholic Youth organization officials of the United States and Canada will open the first international conference of the C. Y. O. tomorrow at the Palmer house. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder of the C. Y. O. and head of its work in Chicago, announced that plans for a permanent national organization will be submitted to the delegates. Bishop Sheil launched the C. Y. O. in 1930 to meet the needs of 250,000 Catholic boys and girls in metropolitan Chicago. Reports now show that more than a million Catholic youths are engaged in the organization's work from coast to coast. The conference will end Wednesday night at a dinner in St. Andrew's church, 3546 North Paulina street, of which Bishop Sheil is pastor.

LOOKS THE SITUATION OVER!

"I've never favored one particular cigarette, Mr. Picard. I can see you do though. Do you find Camels different?"

"Camels are distinctly different from other cigarettes, Mr. Stahl—and they're different in many ways. The longer I smoke Camels, the more I appreciate their natural smoothness and mildness—the real mildness that's easy on the throat. Camels never tire my taste. Camels agree with me—from all angles. You know, I hear so many top-flight golfers praise them. Camels never get on your nerves, and Camels set you right!"

Picard's game seems effortless. He's a long driver—in a tight spot, a heady strategist. "A cigarette, too, has to be sized up from a lot of angles," he says.

WORLD-FAMOUS GOLFERS—men who need iron nerves and steady hands for that winning stroke—and millions of other people under the strain of everyday life—all appreciate this fact: Camels suit your cigarette taste from every single angle. Naturally, CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT! There's a world of pleasure and enjoyment in a cigarette like that. Smoke Camels yourself. See why they are really so different from other cigarettes. Note in particular the greater pleasure and contentment you experience from Camel's costlier tobaccos!

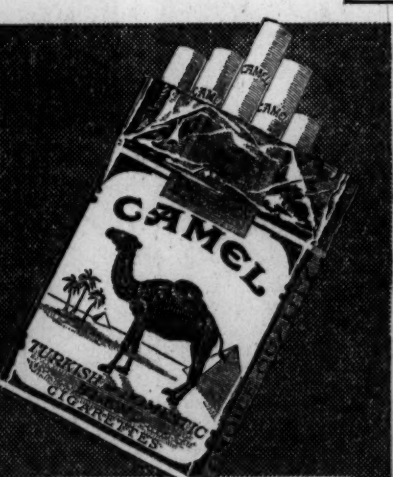

"LOADING SHIP" in a 60-hour stretch, says hard-working Captain Francis Dolan, Marine Superintendent, "naturally a man can't be fussy about his food. I like a few Camels during—and after meals 'for digestion's sake.'"

HELEN STANSBURY, Director of Women's Traffic for United Air Lines, says: "I choose Camels for their mildness and good rich taste. They're never harsh. When the pace I go gets me fatigued, a Camel gives me a 'lift.'"

BOSSING 200 MEN deep under mud and water means, as Mike Maguire, tunnel engineer, puts it: "I can't risk 'angled nerves.' So I stick to Camels. Besides, there's a delightful 'lift' in a Camel for a man when he's tired."

TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY:

"We smoke Camels because we know tobacco"

Marvin Holloman, well-known planter, says: "At auctions the Camel buyers pay more and take the real choice lots of tobacco. That's why we tobacco planters make Camels our cigarette. Then we're sure we're smoking finer, COSTLIER tobaccos, and they sure make a big difference!"

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Mr. T. Strickland, who sold his highest grade tobacco to Camels. "Last year those Camel buyers sure bid up to get my finest lots. There's a big difference in those expensive Camel tobaccos—so I smoke Camels myself. And there's your reason why most planters I know smoke Camels."

John T. Bone, who cultivates some of North Carolina's choicest leaf tobacco, remarks on his last crop: "Yes sir! Those Camel buyers paid top prices for my best lots. No wonder I smoke the cigarette made of finer, more expensive tobaccos—Camels!"

"We planters sure go for Camels," says Raymond Craft, whose life work is growing tobacco. "At the auctions, Camel buyers pay more to get the best of the tobacco offered. Camel bought my choice lots last year—gave me fancy prices for them. Knowing the quality that's in them, I smoke Camels myself."

The best of his last crop brought top prices from Camel buyers for grower George B. Dew. Speaking of the auction last year, Mr. Dew has this to say: "Camel buyers sure get the best tobacco—that's certain. I guess that speaks plenty for the fine quality tobaccos in Camel cigarettes. And, like most planters who know tobacco because they grow it, I smoke Camels myself."

THE OBJECTS OF A BUILDING CODE.

The latest action, or rather inaction, of the city council in again delaying a vote on additional chapters of the proposed building code is illuminating. It discloses what has been the trouble from the start.

A building code is supposed to protect the health, comfort, and safety of the citizens. Within that limitation it ought to be written in a fashion to encourage building; that is, it ought to be a code for building owners. It ought to permit the use of any materials and any methods of construction which do not menace health and safety.

Unfortunately for Chicago a good many of the aldermen seem determined to enact a code which will serve the interest not so much of the owners as of the material manufacturers who employ the slickest lobbyists. That can only result in needlessly high building costs and therefore in discouraging citizens from putting up houses and flats.

The mayor has suggested a way of achieving some progress, limited though it be. He has proposed that the committee's work be endorsed in the knowledge that it can subsequently be amended. That will not please the subcommittee whose work has been largely undone nor will it please manufacturers of some materials which have been excluded, but there is something to be said for the proposal as the best way out of a bad situation.

THE BAR AND CRIME.

In opening a campaign to obtain a more liberal support for the New York Legal Aid society, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey touched upon a topic which is a live one in these columns, the lawyer criminal. THE TRIBUNE has put that term into circulation and Mr. Dewey has another good one. He calls these individuals the "general counsel of the underworld," "lawyers who accept retainers to acquit defendants at whatever cost and by whatever means." "The racketeer, the swindler, the bucket shop operator, and the fence have counsel almost before they reach the Toms."

This is a well known phase of organized crime in every great city and the system works in lesser cities. It is a great discredit to the legal profession, which is unjustly charged in the public mind with the evil doings of this unscrupulous minority, a very small but at times a conspicuous one. It should be more vigorously dealt with by the bar, which has been derelict in cleaning its house.

But Mr. Dewey was concerned on this occasion, not with the lawyer criminal and his clients, but with "the vast army of defendants who are accused of crime and have no funds with which to retain counsel." "Nearly 50 per cent," he says, "of all the defendants indicted for felonies in New York county last year had no money for a lawyer. They usually had few friends and no means to procure witnesses." The Legal Aid society maintains a small group of volunteers who defended 2,400 cases in 1937, but more than 1,200 cases were assigned by the judges to a collection of lawyers who hang around the courts, "bench warmers," Mr. Dewey calls them, "most of whose offices are in their hats." Probably they know their precincts.

The result, he says, is "a tragedy and a farce," and he proceeds to illustrate the trickery and fee gouging to which the unfortunate are subjected. "Last month a new all-time low was reached. A defendant in the lombs had all his money on deposit with the cashier at the city prison, a total of 25 cents. A member of the New York bar was assigned to defend the case and his first act was to procure an assignment of the 25 cents from the defendant and collect it from the cashier." Probably he was overpaid, at that.

On this situation of the indigent caught in the toils of the law, from which the well heeled or influential criminal so often escapes, Mr. Dewey said, and his words should be heeded by the legal fraternity: "Too long has the bar left this most important public duty in the hands of a few. I submit to you that the prosecution and the defense of those accused of crime is the first duty of every lawyer. It is an unsound and unhealthy condition when one per cent of the bar is trustee of the public obligation and the good name of ninety-nine per cent of the profession."

In an earlier period of American society, and it is not very long ago, virtually every lawyer had some practice in criminal cases, and this included the greatest members of the bar whose defense or prosecution of some cases is historic. But with the growth of property and its problems the most lucrative practice came to the civil branch while criminal law descended into the hands of a few specialists, often men without scruple whose profits were in proportion to their lack of scruple. This has not only thrown a shadow on the practice of the criminal law but, as Mr. Dewey points out and THE TRIBUNE has often asserted, upon the whole profession of the law. How this situation may be corrected it is not easy to prescribe, certainly not easy for a layman, but it is there and the profession of the law cannot afford to ignore it.

THE AMERICAN CHEKA.

Secretary Wallace, in a letter to Chief Justice Hughes, has asserted his deathless devotion to principles of fairness in proceedings before administrative officials and boards in the department of agriculture. Mr. Wallace dates his devotion from 1938.

The fact remains, however, that officials of the department of agriculture and other agencies of the government continue to act simultaneously as complainant, prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner in determining the rights of citizens. The men who sit in judgment in these departmental courts are political appointees, subject to political influences, and in addition are frequently possessed of prejudices which should disqualify them from acting as judges.

Just how oppressive Mr. Wallace's own department has been may be inferred from some remarks recently made by Arthur T. Vanderbilt, president of the American Bar association. Mr. Vanderbilt spoke last March at a conference on administrative tribunals, organized by the Cincinnati bar. His remarks are published in the American Bar Association Journal for April, along with those of the other distinguished speakers. At one point he said:

"The most subtle objection to the present system of administrative adjudication remains to be stated. It is the oppression that may arise from the multiple regulation of a single business or industry. There is not a lawyer in active practice who has not had to face this situation. I can best describe the cumulative effect of administrative control by an illustration of my own practice.

"Before the Hoosac mills case was decided I was representing the receivers of a packing concern that owed $800,000 in processing taxes. If the tax were invalid the concern might be reorganized; otherwise clearly not. The question of the constitutionality of the processing tax accordingly became pertinent. I began to look into the matter. Within a few days, first one lawyer, then a second and soon a third, began to arrive from the west. Each had a brief to prove the unconstitutionality of the Agricultural Adjustment act. Each placed his work at my disposal. Each declined to say how he had learned of my interest in the matter or whom he represented or why his own client had not taken action to resist the payment of the processing tax. One finally did ask me what I would do if I had a client subject to nearly thirty possible species of federal control. I looked out my window and did not answer him. In fact I have not answered him yet. I am, however, tremendously impressed by the fact that astute counsel permitted their clients to pay taxes running into hundreds of millions of dollars when they were convinced that the tax was unconstitutional."

The Hoosac Mills case, to which Mr. Vanderbilt refers, was the one in which the processing taxes were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court. Mr. Vanderbilt's testimony amounts to this: the packers, millers and other processors of farm products who were called upon to pay the taxes under the original AAA law believed the levy to be unconstitutional. It might be added that with the fewest exceptions they believed the processing taxes to be not only illegal but injurious to the farmers who were supposed to benefit; and in both conclusions they were proved correct by subsequent events. Nevertheless, the big packers and millers were afraid to assert their rights as citizens because, from their experience, they had no illusions about the fairness of Mr. Wallace's department and the other Washington agencies. The citizens of a supposedly free country were afraid of their own government.

Mr. Vanderbilt's testimony has served to clarify a situation which hitherto has gone unexplained. In the early days of AAA every lawyer who had looked into the question had the gravest doubts of the constitutionality of the processing taxes and yet not one of the larger corporations dealing in farm products made any direct effort to defend itself against the illegal tax levy. It was only after a number of little fellows with little at stake had led the way that the big packers and millers entered their claims. The explanation is now at hand. They didn't assert their rights because they didn't dare incur official vengeance.

Some people still wonder why business today is stagnant. The reason is obvious. Business men are in terror of the Washington cheka. They are afraid to stick their necks out because they know from experience that the government harbors grudges and through its various bureaus is in a position to take vengeance on any one who opposes it, however just his position may be. As prosperity results from many people sticking their necks out (i. e., taking business chances) there is no prosperity today.

This depression was made in Washington and one of the most important instruments employed in creating it was precisely these administrative tribunals as they are now organized with all their power to oppress and terrify.

MORE PRIMING?

(Leelanau Enterprise, Leelanau, Mich.)

We had a pump once it some that took five minutes priming and pumping at certain times of the year when the well was low to bring up the black water from the bottom. Then it had really dry spells and no amount of priming did any good until a good rainy season refilled the well.

Well, from 1933 to 1938 there hasn't been a "rainy spell" to refill the federal money well, yet today President Roosevelt is asking for $4,000,000,000 to prime the pump of an already dry well. The well is dry because its contents have been spent beginning as far back as 1929 in federal projects; in relief funds, a Florida ship canal, in Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams, in a TVA power dam, in model villages (such as Norris town and Greenbelt) in increased bureaus, in pork barrel bills, and projects in countless ways designed to spend up into prosperity. What have we today? Prosperity? No—depression! The same kind of a depression as in 1933 before the great spending spree; only today the indebtedness of the national government is dangerously top-heavy!

Do you want to keep on with this pump-priming spending that breeds new taxes, indebtedness and false prosperity? Do you want your tax bill to mount so high that you can no longer own a house, afford a car, own a business, or any property? The taxes of the future—if this spending continues—will be too great for almost all of us to own anything. Think—think today, and take action! Don't be fooled that four billion dollars is easy for our federal government to pay out! It's just as difficult for the nation to sustain this huge expense as it would be for you to pay $40,000 tomorrow for a project you didn't anticipate.

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

A TRAVELING SALESMAN returned home from the road depressed in spirits because of the small amount of business he had booked during the week, according to Robert L. Lederer's story. After dinner his wife noticed him writing a letter and asked him to whom he was writing. "Well," answered the drummer, "since Hitler's chief aim is the acquisition of new territory, I'm turning over to him Cleveland, Toledo, Sandusky, and part of northern Indiana."

MAY ALONG THE DES PLAINES.

The wild crabapple thickets have spent their fragrance. Very early bloomed the hawthorns in the woodland, spilling faded petals into pools of blue phlox at their feet. Profuse pink flowers of wild geranium mingle with the phlox and bell-wort droops blue yellow tassels in their midst. Violets blue—violets, deeper blue, rise dewy-fresh on their long stems above the grasses. In a secluded spot some purple trilliums linger with the rue anemones. No lurid coloring is there; May tints her blossoms with pink and azure-purple to harmonize with buttercups and yellow violets. Even the wings of the indigo bunting that nests above them are violet-tinged.

It was quiet in the green-latticed wood. By following a little path overrun with myrtle and wild strawberries I found a favorite spot, remote from the outside world. Bees were busy among the crabapples and a butterfly, intoxicated by sweetness, hung motionless from a silver ball on the bladderwort. Then came the "preep" of the crested flycatcher. On a linden bough two mourning doves sat side by side; under the bushes Solomon's seal was budding and wild ginger hid an exotic blossom. Reluctantly I left the wood, passing the miniature pond in time to glimpse a little blue heron taking his silent departure from the cattails.

THE BUSINESS WOMAN'S HEALTH PROGRAM.

THE number of women who today are engaged in mercantile and industrial pursuits is much greater than a generation ago. The stay-at-home daughter is a thing of the past and not a few young married matrons find employment a great aid in bridging over the first few years of home building. This transition has brought to many families an improved economic status, but it is at an unlooked-for cost. Has it not given rise to numerous problems relating to physical well-being? It is obviously impossible for one such to engage in a full day's work—keeping her mind on her job—and at the same time manage a household and fill social engagements. In addition, most women find the strain of a responsible position wearing and enervating. If single, she is obliged to look forward to a period of retirement and, naturally, her work is uppermost in her mind. She asks herself: "How long can I function efficiently and remain of value to my employer? What hazards attach to changes in management? Can I keep my health?" She must realize full well that in the world of business there is no place for the ailing.

With these thoughts running through her mind a girl may take stock of her status and make a real effort to plan each 24 hours so that not only alertness will be evident, but she will keep fit. If she knows anything at all about the rules of hygiene she understands that one cannot take ten minutes to dress, drink a cup of coffee, and rush off to work. All too often the noon lunch is a soda fountain affair. The official meal of the day, perhaps, is that which comes in the evening. She need not wonder should symptoms of indigestion, even stomach or duodenal ulcers, present themselves. Furthermore, such a schedule is likely to breed emotional distress, nervousness, and a loss of nervousness typified by irritability.

Not infrequently some of this group will suffer from persistent exhaustion and low blood pressure. The cause lies in two factors primarily: [1] lack of exercise out-of-doors and [2] too little restful building food. I have no patience with the individual in her late thirties who maintains her girlish figure at the expense of good nutrition.

Not long ago I asked several hundred young women to list their chief complaints. Included in the series were department store clerks, stenographers, secretaries, billing machine operators, and the like. In all, about twenty occupations were represented. The answers were interesting in that not a single symptom was characteristic of any one particular disorder, but it was obvious that serious difficulties would ensue, perhaps years later, unless substantial alterations were made in the daily routine. Headache was the dominant trouble. Then came constipation, ennui—or, as some put it, weariness or laziness—indigestion, and sleeplessness.

As a result of the survey several recommendations were offered:

1. Rise sufficiently early so that five to eight minutes of arm and leg exercise may be performed, and dressing and eating indulged in without haste.
2. Establish a regular hour for retiring and bathe just before bedtime. The water should be warm, not hot. Ten to fifteen minutes in the tub will prove relaxing.
3. The diet should be adequate without adding salt, unless one is too thin. The meals should be eaten slowly.

Strangely enough, one cannot count for much that type of exercise which is performed during one's regular work hours. Indoors. Two or three miles in diluted oxygen—walking in the open air—is far superior to any tonic or muscle builder that comes out of a bottle. Some time should be given to reading and there should be enough variety of interests to provide a diversion for thought currents.

A margin of resistance which is too narrow to sustain the drains of a reasonably strenuous job cannot be expected to take care of an infection, should one appear.

BROADEN THE MIND.

Hungry writes: What can I eat between meals? I feel the need of something about 10 a. m.

REPLY.

Why not extend the breakfast and increase the meal? If the first meal of the day is fairly substantial, the chances are that you will have no hunger sensations before noon. If you wish to gain weight, however, a pint of milk at 10 a. m. and another at 3 p. m. will satisfy hunger and add several pounds.

TONGUE FATIGUE.

M. F. writes: My tongue and jaws become oppressively fatigued at times. Can this be explained?

REPLY.

Perhaps your tongue is "hungry in the middle," as we say of those who chatter incessantly. I can think of no special disease other than myasthenia gravis, the earliest symptom of which is drooping of the eyelids. Make certain that there is no infection about the mouth or teeth.

IODIZED SALT SUGGESTED.

S. L. J. writes: When the body's supply of iodine is insufficient, what is the best method of procedure?

REPLY.

If you live in a salt district, where there is too little iodine in the soil and water (thence in fruits and vegetables), iodized salt is suggested.

2. How can I make him pay back rent and collect for the unexpired term?

WHIPSAWING THE MOTORIST.

Chicago, May 12.—The city demands that automobile owners get their safety stickers, threatens arrest if they do not have them, and yet makes it as difficult as possible to secure them. Let me cite my experience, which is typical of hundreds of others.

On the northwest side, testing stations were formerly maintained at both Riss and Portage parks, in addition to Humboldt. The Riss and Portage stations are closed, leaving only the one on Humboldt boulevard to serve the whole northwest side.

I am employed and therefore am limited as to time. I obtained time off yesterday to get my sticker, arrived at Humboldt boulevard, and waited over three hours, finally being told that I would have to come back another day.

This sort of treatment is not only unfair to motorists but works against the efforts of the city to keep cars regularly inspected.

Can't something be done about this?

ALICE K. PETERSON.

ANOTHER.

Chicago, May 13.—May I express my thanks and appreciation to the men in charge and policemen stationed at the testing line at 8831 Cottage Grove avenue. With hundreds of impatient people waiting in line for hours, the situation was handled in a fine, orderly fashion, and these men, working under almost inhuman conditions, are patient and helpful.

What I should like to know is why should there be only one such lane to take care of all the south side and why in such an out of the way place?

JENNIE C. GREATMAN.

THE SUPERFLUOUS SALESMAN.

New York, May 12.—The correspondent signing himself "Railroad Man" whose panacea for the maladies of the carriers contemplates the extermination of the traffic department, has solved the problem. Follow the practices of Japan, China, Cambodia, and Siam. Here are no costly city ticket offices or travel solicitors. If you want to ship or travel you must go looking for it. Restore the traffic departments to the status of the McAdoo regime. Adopt the technique of the post office. (Did a Surplus Jim Chinaman ever think any one for buying a stamp?) Even carry the Great Scheme into other fields. Dispense with the sales forces of the State street stores and substitute shopkeepers, vend automobiles by catalogue and keep your own cork. The idea has cosmic potentialities. Look at all the newspaper now devoted to advertising that would be saved! (Better not publish the last line. Senator Minton might have no sense of humor.)

NED ALVORD.

MORE ABOUT "SNOW WHITE."

Chicago, May 5.—Regarding the letter published in this morning's TRIBUNE concerning the raise in children's admission prices to "Snow White"—while I hold no brief for some of the practices of motion picture exhibitors, it is only fair to place blame where blame is due. As one southern theater put it: "It is a matter of complying with the demands of Mr. Disney's representative in regard to raising admission prices or not showing the film at all."

B. M. B.

A GLORIOUS VOICE.

Chicago, May 10.—Your correspondent, Harry R. Sternheim, certainly sounded my sentiments. I have often wondered why it is that we Americans, who are so proud of our own artistic achievements, always draw the line where a Negro is concerned. Marian Anderson's voice is certainly superior by far to any contralto voice that we have ever heard in opera here.

U. S. CROP RULE SPURS SOUTHERN CORN GROWING

Cotton Reduction Forces Shift in Planting.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Clarksdale, Miss., May 15.—(Special.)—Because the government has drastically curtailed cotton planting, southern farmers are scratching around in an effort to find what grain and hay crops can be grown without being subject to heavy penalties under the AAA control plan. It is estimated that at least 15 million acres of land have been taken out of cotton production in the south by the new farm law.

Planters say they cannot cut their cotton acreage from a third to a half—as required by the government this year—without finding something to take its place to prevent a loss. Farmers cooperating in the government plan contend they are obliged to grow corn, oats, soy beans, clover, and other crops on land formerly used for cotton. A few are expected to ignore their allotments. An increase in the production of corn in the uncontrolled area outside the main corn belt is certain, and cotton growers likely will plant their share of this increase.

Crop Map Is Changing.

The whole crop map of the cotton belt is undergoing a critical revision which will force other changes in the nation's farming system.

Although AAA regulations are supposed to prevent an excessive planting of corn, there is plenty of evidence that an increase in the southern corn acreage is on the way. Corn planters are clicking from the northern line of Arkansas south. Many thousands of acres of corn already is in the ground and some is high enough to cultivate. In this section a few fields of the earliest planted corn is almost waist high and soon will be ready to cultivate for the last time.

The prosperity expected in the south as a result of government subsidies and the shift of some of the cotton acres to grain and hay crops is reflected in the difference in the attitude of planters and their share croppers and tenants.

Missouri Choppers Depressed.

Up in the Mississippi valley cotton counties of southeastern Missouri, cotton choppers are depressed over the blow by the government's heavy cut in corn and cotton allotments. But through the country around Elytheville and Osceola, Ark., the tune of the chopper changes. There they laugh and joke as they swing down the rows of young cotton.

They are happy because a government anomaly—which reduces the cotton belt's cotton acreage and the corn belt's corn acreage—enables the cotton belt to grow corn and other products formerly bought from farmers of the northern and central agricultural areas.

Men friendly toward the plan of having the government direct the operations of the farms believe that the south needs to raise more feed to avoid buying corn, oats, hay, and other feeds from the central west. They think the southern farmers should keep more dairy cows and raise and feed more meat producing animals, particularly beef cattle. They realize that this would mean a loss to central west farmers who have been selling grain, hay, meat, and dairy products to southern consumers.

Planters Changed for Corn.

In northern Arkansas during the last week dust has been flying behind corn planters and across nearby fields of cotton. Planters have found it easy to switch from cotton to corn by changing the plates in the seed hoppers.

On down the Mississippi river corn is ankle high in the Memphis region, and here in the Clarksdale neighborhood a few fields soon will be shooting ears. In central and northern Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri much of the corn is not yet in the ground.

With an earlier spring, farmers in this territory are able to have some of their crops nearly ready to harvest and feed before many of the spring planted crops are in the ground in the central and northern part of the corn belt. Oats sown this spring are being cut a few miles south of here, with some averaging 80 bushels an acre.

Need Crops for Own Use.

Small farmers, who have been raising about 30 acres of cotton, have been told they must reduce their crop ten acres or more. They will need for use on their own farms about all the feed they can grow on this land taken out of cotton.

But operators of larger farms are worried. Plantation owners, for example, who have been planting 500 acres of cotton, must find grain and hay crops to grow on about 150 acres. That will give them more feed than they need for home use.

With extra feed, their live stock will be better fed, but the planters are not in shape rapidly to increase the production of beef and dairy cattle and hogs to eat the surplus. Leaders say that, if the new cropping program is to continue, live stock production must be increased in the cotton states.

WILLED $100 BY HIS FATHER, BUT GETS 5 MILLION

New York, May 15.—(Special.)—Elisha Huson Waterman, 39 years old, dishwasher, cook and mystery author, woke up this morning in his cramped Greenwich village flat to find himself an undisputed fountain pen millionaire, though his rich father, Frank D. Waterman, who died on May 6, in a will filed for probate late yesterday, cut Elisha off with $100 of his father's personal fortune.

A legal representative of the wealthy Waterman clan, however, proclaimed that the death of the elder Waterman removed all obstacles to Elisha's enjoyment of a $5,000,000 trust fund created by his greatuncle, L. E. Waterman, inventor of the fountain pen.

Although Elisha has repeatedly declared he would battle for his rights in the trust fund, his brother, Frank D. Waterman Jr., said today there would be no battle. "There is no dispute about this money," he said, "My understanding is that Elisha is entitled to it." Oscar R. Ewing, partner in the law firm of Charles Evans Hughes Jr., who represents the family—also said that "nobody has the slightest idea of disputing Elisha's claim."

MORE DOLLARS IN U. S. NOW THAN EVER IN HISTORY

About 6½ Billions in Circulation Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(Special.)—The number of dollars in the United States in gold, silver, and paper is greater today than at any time in the history of the country.

The stock of money in the United States stands at about 19½ billion dollars, of which about 6½ billion dollars is in circulation. The sum in circulation, equally divided among the nation's citizens, would bring approximately $50 to every pocket, the treasury estimated.

This per capita stock of circulating money is the greatest in the nation's history, except for that of 1920, when it stood at $51.38.

9 Billion Top in Prosperity.
During the period of prosperity the total stock of money did not surpass 9 billion dollars. It stood at about one-half of what it is today.

The stock of money and the money in circulation in thousands of dollars for representative years in the history of the nation are as follows:

Year	Stock of money	Money in circulation	Per capita
1860	$ 28,000	$ 20,000	$ 4.90
1865	1,130,197	1,083,441	21.18
1900	2,366,220	2,081,231	37.28
1914	3,797,853	3,109,434	54.03
1920	8,158,496	5,467,830	81.28
1929	8,538,796	4,746,297	39.08
1930	10,078,417	5,729,764	45.49
1935	13,115,035	6,567,001	66.46
1937	19,376,760	6,447,133	40.85

Total Stock of Money June 30.

The total stock of money in the United States as of last June 30, which stood at $19,376,760, was divided as follows:

Gold coin and bullion	$12,316,271,000
Silver dollars	1,382,276,000
Subsidiary silver	358,975,000
United States notes	346,681,000

MRS. ROOSEVELT GETS FIRST NEW AIR MAIL STAMPS

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(P)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt inaugurated national air mail week today by accepting a sheet of the new six-cent air mail stamps from Vincent Burke, Washington postmaster.

The presentation was made at an airliner set up on a plaza across from the commerce department building. During air mail week, commemorating the twentieth year of air mail service, the ship will be a postoffice substitution.

Mrs. Roosevelt, laughingly commented that she was accepting the stamps for the President. Mr. Roosevelt is an enthusiastic stamp collector.

Another observance of the week was a flight from Newark to Washington by postal officials over the route of the first Newark-Washington air mail flight twenty years ago.

Marion Weiden, screen actress, presented the officials with a model of the biplane used in the early air mail service.

The red and blue air mail stamp went on sale today.

MORMON "WORK AND EAT" RELIEF PLAN SUCCEEDS

Spurn Dole; Program Spreads to Cities.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Mormon church plan to take all of its members off from public relief rolls, announced in 1926, actually works. This was disclosed yesterday when it was demonstrated that, with present day application of old-fashioned principles, social security for a religious group may achieve higher levels than through any government program.

These facts were made clear at a conference of the Chicago region, known as a stake, of the Mormon Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints' chapel at 6111 Kenwood ave.

The principle described as the basis for success of the plan is: "Teach people correct principles, and they will take care of themselves." Harold B. Lee of Salt Lake City, Utah, who emphasized this principle at the conference, said it was first enunciated by Joseph Smith, a Mormon founder, following the building of the historic Illinois Mormon town at Nauvoo. Mr. Lee is the managing director of the church's national welfare committee in charge of the plan. Another speaker from the church's headquarters in Salt Lake City was Melvin J. Ballard, a member of the church's council of the twelve apostles.

Apply Principle to City Groups.
While the 1936 social security announcement was first applied to members living in agricultural regions, yesterday's conference was mainly devoted to the special problems relating to its application to city groups. He added, however, that basically the plan for city or country is the same; both require each group within the church to look after its own needs.

Mr. Lee said that in communities where production is possible, community storehouses have been set up and methods of exchange of products between these communities have been arranged. He explained, for instance, one community might raise wheat and potatoes and another fruits. Methods for exchange of these products have been successfully applied, he said.

Opposed to Dole.
The Salt Lake City welfare leader laid special stress on the principle that every person must work and do his share, whether he is needy or not. Organized cooperation, he declared, is a basic requirement, adding that these principles are in direct opposition to governmental doles which tend to break down character. The main work of the church, Mr. Lee added, is that of a teacher who is teaching people to take care of themselves.

Another basis of the plan involves the traditional Mormon payment of fast offerings derived from a two meal fast on the first Sunday of each month. Funds saved from the cost of those meals are put into the church's welfare chest.

The Chicago stake yesterday set up a welfare supervisory committee to work out Chicago's cooperation in the nation-wide plan.

In a sermon, Mr. Ballard declared that the present trend of people to lean on the federal government will lead only to disaster, and asserted that the primary need of the day is a return to principles of self-effort as the only avenue to freedom.

Boy Playing Tag Injured in Fall from Bathhouse

A game of tag ended with serious injuries yesterday for Raymond Wendt, 12 years old, of 2638 Orchard street. He was playing with two other boys on the roof of the bathhouse at the Diversey beach in Lincoln park when he lost his balance and fell 10 feet to the sidewalk. He was taken to the North Chicago Community hospital.

ENGAGED!

But they can't marry if either has an unsuspected venereal disease

So that they can plan with absolute confidence, many now obtain an examination for gonorrhea and syphilis before becoming engaged

It is risky, these days, to plan on marrying without being certain that you have no venereal infection. For a state law now requires every couple to prove they are free from gonorrhea and syphilis before a marriage license can be obtained!

So, to avoid postponement and heartaches when ready to marry, many now get an examination for venereal diseases before becoming engaged! Such an examination costs very little, takes but a short time, and enables you to make your plans with absolute confidence.

Above all, do not escape the marriage law by being married in another state. For the law was enacted for your own protection and that of your children to come. To evade it is to encourage consequences of a very disastrous nature.

For example, untreated syphilis is not only the principal cause of stillborn, deformed and feeble-minded babies, but it frequently results in heart disease, blindness, deafness, paralysis and even insanity among parents. Neglected gonorrhea has long been responsible for much infantile blindness, and can readily cause sterility, crippling arthritis, and serious bladder, kidney and other troubles in adults.

Many infected innocently

When you consider that syphilis can be contracted innocently, and exist for years without the victim's knowledge, you can see the wisdom of being examined before you become engaged. But make sure you get a complete examination—one that covers gonorrhea as well as syphilis!

A complete examination for venereal diseases consists of two or more different types of blood test, a urinalysis and gonorrheal smears. Furthermore, these laboratory tests should be supplemented by a careful physical inspection. Only in this way can you be absolutely sure that you have no venereal infection!

A thorough examination of this kind can be obtained from your family physician or the Public Health Institute, which to date has examined more than a quarter of a million men, women and children for gonorrhea and syphilis. Hence, if you are thinking of marrying, why not follow the example of countless others and submit to such an examination before becoming engaged?

Examination costs $3.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute puts specialized venereal disease attention within the reach of those with limited incomes. A thorough physical examination for syphilis and gonorrhea, including blood tests, urinalysis and smears, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

Thus there is no need to run the risk of being unable to get a license when you are ready to marry. For not only can an examination be obtained confidentially and at very low cost, but even persons temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be attended.

PRE-MARRIAGE EXAMINATIONS. including blood and other necessary tests, cost $3.00 per person. Those examined before 2 P. M. (at 159 or 169 North Dearborn Street) can obtain their certificates the same afternoon.

Vital Concerto of Hindemith Stirs Audience

BY EDWARD BARRY.

One of the most attractive of music's bad boys was importantly represented on yesterday's Great Northern theater concert of the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Paul Hindemith's Philharmonic concerto received its first Chicago performance at the hands of Izlar Solomon and his forces and added another inch to the local stature of a man who is coming to be recognized even here as one of the most imposing of living musicians.

Hindemith seems to be traveling a little faster since his fatherland, Nazi Germany, indicated that music should have a little more sweetness and light and a sturdier consciousness of art's social duties than most of his productions reveal. He was here only last spring, when he made a succès d'estime with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The reaction of yesterday's excited audience indicated something more than a succès d'estime, but the composer, alas, was far away.

The concerto has a superb vitality which vents itself in nervous, insistent, repetitive little themes, in boisterous freedom of meter, and in blinding flashes of orchestral color. These nervous little themes get themselves into harmonic situations which are described, if at all, only in the appendices of the textbooks.

An air of heady freedom and of direct, necessary expressiveness pervades the piece.

Shriller even than the Hindemith was the Jacques Ibert "Impressions of Paris" which followed. Here is a more exuberant, portrayal of the sights and sounds of the capital than even the now sainted George Gershwin was able to produce.

High points in the suite are the wonderfully realistic night club scene in which Mr. Solomon and his orchestra proved themselves not unworthy of a desirable dance spot should such an opening ever come and a genuinely intoxicating portrayal of a Neully or Montmartre fair.

Morton Sultan, 16 year old Detroit pianist, played the solo part of the Eschoven First concerto with fine feeling for variety of tone color and for all of those little effects which are lumped under the vague name of nuance. He has technique, intelligence, and a modest and likable manner.

Wilhelm Middelschulte, venerable organist who counts his service here in decades rather than years, appeared yesterday in Kimball hall in a trilateral recital for the benefit of the scholarship fund of Zeta chapter (Phi Beta).

Usher gives concert. Leaving behind his workaday function as head balcony usher at Orchestra hall, Michael Signorelli assumed the more aspiring men of a concert tenor at the Woman's club theater last night.

Mr. Signorelli's chief treasure is his admirable high register. He can sail up to an easy, resonant high C without half trying, and two high D's in the scene from Rossini's "The Lady of the Lake" did not seem to scratch against the ceiling of his voice.

As is often the case with high tenors, there is a compensatory thinness in the middle and low parts of his voice. In these less gratifying areas his vocal method is unsteady and he often sings markedly off pitch.

In his approach to his music there were many good moments, but often he seemed to lose sight of the musical meaning of what he was doing.

At the Beaux Arts salon in the Mead hall yesterday afternoon Helen Seales Westbrook, one of the most fluent woman organists in the city, played the electric organ with excellent command of its resources and showed a graceful talent for composition in her own "Minuet in Olden Style." Vesta Watkins, soprano, sang with charming purity of tone and gave her audience great pleasure when she did not force her voice to undertake more dramatic music than it will stand.

General Federation of Clubs' Vote Today Ends Hot Campaign

BY BETTY BROWNING.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Kansas City, Mo., May 15.—(Special.)—Which will win, the Chicago grandmother or the Baltimore society woman? That's the question delegates to the triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs were asking each other on this day of rest as they made feverish last minute preparations for tomorrow's election.

Although supporters of both Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of Chicago and Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore deny it, leaders from several states reported that repeated efforts to persuade them to pledge the votes of their delegations have been made by each party in the hard fought contest for the first vice presidency.

Interest centers in the race for first vice president because Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar of Portland, Ore., is unopposed for the presidency. The race for the second vice presidency is a three-cornered one among Mrs. Laflin Dickinson of Keene, N. H.; Mrs. John S. Harvey of Huntington, W. Va.; and Mrs. Harold G. Bogert of Akron, Col.

Candidates for recording secretary are Mrs. Jefferson D. Atwood of Roswell, N. M., and Mrs. Horace B. Ritchie of Athens, Ga. Mrs. J. L. B. Buck of Richmond, Va., is unopposed for treasurer.

Experienced observers commented on the succession of parties that has enlivened the Whitehurst headquarters, where lies in three flavors were served to all comers one evening. "There's beginning to be a reaction—it worked that way in the election three years ago," one woman remarked.

Mrs. Seymour, with her dignity and reserve, represents the older generation of club women, and Mrs. Whitehurst represents the "modern, go-getting" element, delegates were saying today.

It was predicted that Dr. Clara (Mal) Burdette of Los Angeles, Cal., 83 year old leader, will throw the weight of her influence on Mrs. Seymour's side, rallying the older group that lost out with Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson's election as president three years ago.

"And many of the younger ones will back Mrs. Whitehurst—they want to get away from the older women's domination," a mere 50 year old prophesied. Then there's the sectional angle, the west against the east, and that counts heavily. It was agreed, a close vote is predicted.

Last minute campaign appeals must be slipped under doors or into mail boxes tonight. Campaign managers were planning to call their constituents by 6 o'clock tomorrow morning to get them out and at work before the polls open at 8 o'clock.

The suspense ends Tuesday morning, officially—announcement comes then—but the news of the result is expected to leak out tomorrow night.

Miss Christabel Wheeler Will Wed Easterner

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. SEYMOUR WHEELER of Lake Forest announce the engagement of their daughter, Christabel, to William T. Priestley Jr., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William T. Priestley of New York; formerly of Mississippi.

The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock the evening of June 11 in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest. Only the families and intimate friends will attend the ceremony and the small reception following at the Wheeler home.

Miss Wheeler attended the Ethel Walter school in Simsbury, Conn., and Miss Risher's in Rome, Italy. She made her debut several years ago.

Mr. Priestley is a graduate of Princeton university, class of 1922, and of the Bauhaus in Dessau, Germany. He is an architect. He and his bride will make their home on Long Island.

Carl W. Von Ammon Engaged to Lansing, Mich., Girl

At a tea at home in Lansing, Mich., yesterday Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Herron announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ellen, to Carl William Von Ammon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernst C. Von Ammon of Winnetka.

Young Mr. Von Ammon, who is working in Cleveland; his parents and grandmother, Mrs. William L. Kroschell, and younger brother, Philip Von Ammon, all spent the week-end with the Herrons and attended a round of parties.

It will be the Von Ammons' turn to entertain for their son's fiancée in two or three weeks when she comes to visit them in Winnetka. They are planning a tea to introduce Miss Herron to their friends.

Miss Herron, who has visited in Winnetka several times, will stay with the Von Ammons again in June when she comes to be a bridesmaid at the wedding of Miss Jean McWilliams to Charles D. P. Hamilton III, on June 27. It was while young Mr. Von Ammon was visiting Miss McWilliams and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. McWilliams, at their summer home in Northport, Mich., last summer that he met Miss Herron, whose parents also have a summer home at the Point.

Miss Herron attended Pine Manor and Wheaton college in Massachusetts. Mr. Von Ammon is a graduate of Williams. The wedding will take place next fall.

There is a round of parties for Joseph A. Blake Jr. of New York, who is with the Hagen, Reques in Lake Forest. Mr. Blake, who visits here often, went to Taft with Mr. Reques.

Mrs. Edwin R. Moore has invitations out for a tea for Mrs. Eugene Williams Kettering at home in Hinsdale Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Kettering, who moved here from Detroit, have leased the Hinsdale home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Warren Everett.

Back from spending the winter in Florida are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring. They have opened their home at Oconomowoc, Wis., for the summer and the children are settled there while their parents commute from Oconomowoc week-ends to their apartment at 1448 Lake Shore drive, where her brother, George W. Dixon Jr., lives. The senior Mr. Dixon is living the year round in Florida in a little house about a block from the Zaring's.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kirk Love, who have spent the winter and spring in Palm Beach and Pinehurst, are in Chicago for the summer. They have taken an apartment in the Drake Towers.

Good Morning! Kentucky Moonshine" has lots of hummable music, lots of sunshiny Tony Martin and his increasingly alluring voice, lots of that fetching little Marjorie Weaver, who was so swell in "Second Honeymoon," and who acts and sings charmingly here, and lots and lots and LOTS of the Ritz Brothers.

I've been accused of never having a kind word for the Brothers. Well, I DON'T as a rule find them the least bit funny. This trip they amused me a bit now and then— which, I think, is all they should be in a picture—thrown in as comedy relief. When allowed to hog the show as they do in "Kentucky Moonshine" they grow awfully, awfully tedious. Their burlesque on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is, I think, one of the most wearying sequences I ever sat through. For it should be willing to vote them the World's Worst Bore.

The story? Here you are: The soap company sponsored broadcast of Radio Entertainer Jerry Wade has been steadily losing popularity. Jerry decides listeners are sick of swing and that a real hill billy musical program would be the oats. Accompanied by his aid, he departs for the mountings of Kentucky, where hill billies are supposed to grow.

SYNOPSIS

Elizabeth Sandel is shocked to find her two children resent their father's will that she should have a fortune to her and do not mention them. Elizabeth goes off to Sweden and for a change, she meets Andrew, who was a groom at her wedding. Elizabeth, a widow, is returning after years of absence in China to meet her children. William, his son, lives with a bachelor relative. His daughter, Shirley, is with his wife's people. Shirley has become involved in a romance with an artist who was engaged to another girl. Her mother's family, so they have written Andrew, can do nothing with her. Andrew has in his pocket with Shirley before becoming involved with his wife. Shirley believes the older generation are all against her, and treats him coolly. Andrew turns to Elizabeth for sympathy.

INSTALLMENT XIII HOSTILITY.

Andrew paused for a moment and went on with a faint smile at his own expense. "You may not believe it but I never had a chance of tackling her alone. I did get to the point of going up to her room when she went to dress, but William opened the door. They'd changed the rooms I'd engaged for them—no doubt she'd foreseen what I might do—and I had to find an excuse for dragging him out of the bath and beat a retreat."

Elizabeth leaned back in her chair and laughed. "I've never heard anything quite so ridiculous," she declared. "Andrew smiled himself. Put baldly his story might sound feeble, but he found it difficult to show in words the determined elusiveness of his daughter, and something which disturbed him a great deal more (and which he did not care to admit, a feeling of very real hostility from her to him). As a reasonable being he knew that it was quite feasible that the girl might be any of the things he least desired; calculating, selfish, a moral degenerate, a potential bad hat, or a mere fool; but in every contact with her his sober judgment denied these possibilities.

"You are partly to blame if I seem incredibly weak-minded," he accused Elizabeth. "You pulled me up about condemning the chit out of hand, you may remember. I want to persuade you to come over and dine tonight, and have a look at them."

"I'll come with pleasure. I'll even contrive to draw William away to discuss aeronautics . . . but O, don't expect any wisdom from me about the girl, Andrew," cried Elizabeth in dismay. "My own daughter thinks me a perfect fool."

"Good God!" exclaimed the lecturer.

It was naturally the most stimulating reply he could have made her. Andrew called for Elizabeth about seven that evening, and took her to the edification of Miss Pett and her intimates, who thought him 'most distinguished looking', and discussed him throughout dinner. It was considered highly probable that he was a delegate to the league of nations, a member of the government even, but Mrs. Sovran, when appealed to on this point, said in her gentle way that she fancied the league was not in session.

"Then no doubt he is her brother or brother-in-law—a relation, you may be sure," cried Miss Pett. "How very stupid of us! Being in mourning she wouldn't dream of going out to dine with a gentleman who wasn't related, naturally. Poor thing, I daresay it will cheer her up. . . ."

At Vevey meanwhile the cabal were preparing themselves for their father's guest.

"I ran across an old friend in Montreaux and have asked her to dine with us," he had informed them when they returned from their excursion, damp and glowing.

"O, really."

"We'd better clean up then."

"You've had a good day?" inquired their parent.

"O, yes, rather, thanks."

They were off as usual, ignoring the lift and clattering upstairs, William observing as they went:

"Going to make yourself gaudy for the girl friend? . . . You never know. Perhaps we'll get the old boy off this season. After all he's not a bad looking chap and fairly sound in the tooth."

"She's probably married," said Shirley.

"Lord, yes. That's a thought."

William, whistling happily, unlocked his door and vanished. He had a pretty good day, and the bath when he tried it was piping hot, which was all that mattered at the moment.

He took a jocular tone about his father to hide the fact that he found the latter's efforts to make friends rather embarrassing. He didn't analyze this sensation, but he felt constrained to the same kind of awkward politeness as when he stayed with other fellows, and their parents took him about, or tried to engage him in conversation.

"He's all right, of course," mused William, "but a shade odd . . . like the night he thumped on my door and then said 'O, it's you, and then some rot about wanting to borrow a stamp. Gave me the start of my life. I thought he was coming in for a heart-to-heart about the moral uplift or something equally frightful."

Contrary to Andrew's belief, William had kept this incident to himself. If anything of the kind had been in the wind he hoped his size and look of cold astonishment had shown his father that he was a bit too old for that sort of stuff, and anyway he wasn't going to give Shirley the laugh or him. Being nearly three times as young as his sister he had to keep his end up.

Having parboiled himself to a nice shade of lobster pink, William dressed and went downstairs, to find Shirley before him looking like a lily of the field in her long, high necked, sleeveless frock of primrose satin.

His only reaction to this charming sight was:

"Had a good wallow? I don't mind betting you didn't come to, the boy though."

"Boli indeed!" said his sister loftily. "I simmered gently till done, sprinkled with salt and pepper, garnished with a spot of my celebrated geranium paste, and shall be served as a deviled ice. Let us be subtle or die."

"Smells all right," declared William, and was ordered not to sniff the confectionery.

Shirley's desire to maintain a light satirical tone was continually being defeated by her anger on one side and her happiness on the other. Though the past and the future might be in a thorough mess and worry her badly when she was alone, suspended between these two dark states was a present bright at least in patches, none of which she intended to miss.

Tramping with William in the open air, seeing new places, strange people, traveling in odd little railways; that she well meaning and puzzled foreign tongue which no blameworthy on the English speaking foreigners could persuade her to relinquish, until buyers and sellers alike were convulsed with laughter; catching up with William's news and plans and ambitions; coming back to attractive hotel meals with a healthy appetite; all this spiced by a determination to keep it going until the end of William's holidays, father or no father, was rich excitement after the dreary months behind.

War was inevitable, but it was not William's war. He was out of it, he was all right, and with this examination ahead, she was not going to have him worried.

Meanwhile she contrived not merely to evade the enemy, but to see that William got his chance to read, changing rooms with him when hers was on the less noisy side of the hotel.

Accustomed to settling their own affairs, it would not have occurred to either of them to mention the transition to the person who had chosen the rooms and was footing the bill; and that well meaning and puzzled gentleman, torn between a desire to save his daughter's face and a puzled attractive ears, had no conception that she was merely scheming for time to evacuate her noncombatant before a battle which she believed already lost.

The arrival of Andrew and the visitor caught the girl off her guard, for she was perched on a table in the lounge, enjoying some foolery of William's, when they walked in.

It was a hurry call—the letter had to go out by messenger. I walked away from my desk to meet him and save time.

He was a trim looking lad of about 16, I imagine, and every inch a boy. He took the letter, then, "It has to have a 'from' on it," he said. "It's a rule of the company. Just write it in the corner here."

He pointed and gave me a name. "How did you know that?" I asked.

"O, I read your articles," he said. "You do?" I said, with a smile.

But to myself I said, "O, dear! O me . . . O my!"

That very day I had received four letters from little girls of, I imagine, about 12. And again I said to myself, "O dear . . . O me . . . O my!"

The Housewife

It's the time when women like to brighten their kitchen shelves with new covers and edgings. Have you seen the pretty, crisp, plaited new self edging that is made of a specially processed cellophane? The plait will not come out.

You can get a nine foot roll of it at extremely small cost, and you simply apply it to the shelf edge with thumb tacks.

This edging comes in yellow and white, blue and white, and black and white. There are several new patterns in waterproof materials for shelves. These are made with their own fancy borders. You simply apply them on the shelves and turn the border down to make the self edging. Again you apply with thumb tacks.

Race to Green Now Stampede in Style World

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Green, a grand color sadly neglected by shoppers and designers alike until this season, finally does the propagandist trick.

Until you've seen how intriguing this flattering color can be in a white dotted green Swiss dress for a sultry day in town or country, in a crisp green and white checked gingham two piece model for office wear, in gay green gloves, hat, and footwear, you've missed a shopping thrill.

Green as cool as the long green allee of a forest; green like the refreshing depths of an emerald lake; green as mysteriously dark as cypress or as thinly cool as lettuce, every tint and tone is used for smart summer clothes.

For coolish days in town, chiffon thin wool or dull crepe, for heat waves, green lawn dimity, cotton net or lace. For dress parade, plaited dark green chiffon cooled with whiffs of white. White dotted silk with a green background makes ideal summer dresses for town. Figue outfits have designs of white against green or green against white. There are green linen dresses with separate jackets—boleros or green tailored coats.

Hats of green leaves closely molded in skull cap formation and flattering broad brimmed green straw or linen hats tied simply with velvet ribbon are on display. Green net Gibson girl shirtwaists are worn with white skirts. Dark green lace dinner dresses, green summer negligees, and crisp green house coats will be popular. Green pajamas and even green dotted linen nightgowns are ready for a summer night's sleep.

Costume jewelry, most inexpensive, features the lure of green in pins, bracelets, and clips.

Get into green, it's flattering to everyone—blonde, brunet, copper-toned, and exceptionally so for the lovely sophisticates with gray or white hair.

Milwaukee Road Women.

The Milwaukee Road Women's club sewing guild will hold its monthly meeting in the clubrooms in the road's office building at Fullerton and Southport avenues at 10:30 o'clock today.

"Heirloom" Quilt

of Silk Scraps

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices. 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Heirloom Quilt" is a variation of the popular fan pattern, but, instead of being applied, the entire square is pieced. The derivation of the name is readily understood, since all the pieces used in the original quilt were of dark silk from discarded garments belonging to every member of the family and their immediate relatives. When the popular cotton printed materials were available in quantity in America silk squares tell out of favor. The light, multicolored prints offer a gay, cheerful appearance in a bedroom. A variety of shades may be successfully combined without becoming bizarre.

home of Mrs. John L. Kellogg, 2952 Lake Shore drive; a luncheon the Park Ridge School for Girls will give for the newly organized auxiliary board for Solomon cottage; a luncheon the North Shore Service League of the Chicago Maternity center will give at the Y; a luncheon and bridge party the Wilmette Center of the Infant Welfare society will give at the Shawnee Country club, and the annual meeting of the Chicago Smith College club tonight at 6:15 o'clock.

Solomon cottage was given to the Park Ridge school in 1908 by the late Julius Rosenwald, who named it in honor of Mrs. Henry Solomon, president of the school board from 1906 to 1908. Mrs. Solomon will be the special guest at the luncheon party today, and also at a tea this afternoon.

Gilbert Stecker in Montreal Till Fall.

Mrs. D. Frank Webb, vice president, will preside at the luncheon of the North Shore Service League, in the absence of Mrs. Gilbert Stecker, president, who with her husband and their daughter Sarah Jane has gone to Montreal to remain until September.

After the business meeting of the Smith club John N. Hazard will talk on "Juvenile Delinquency in the Soviet Union." He is an alumnus of Yale, received his LL.B. from Harvard and then spent three years in Russia, where he attended the Moscow Juridical institute as an agent for the Institute of Current World Affairs. Under the auspices of the latter institute he now is working up his material at the University of Chicago.

Tea Today for Winnetka Infant Welfare Juniors.

The senior board of the Winnetka Center of the Infant Welfare society is entertaining the junior board at a tea this afternoon in the new home, at 638 Hill road, of Mrs. George E. Booth. Mrs. William Fuller Gregson, president of the Woman's auxiliary of the society; Miss Dorothy Hall, who is the mental hygiene supervisor, and Mrs. James L. Surplus, president of the junior board, will speak.

After the speeches, in the big playroom, tea will be served in the dining room and living room adjoining. Mrs. S. Edwin Earle is president of the senior board, and Mrs. Gilbert Scribner is the program chairman. Mrs. William J. Cook, who founded the Winnetka center a score of years ago, will be a special guest at the meeting.

Mrs. Gaylord Freeman Jr. is opening her new home in Beverly Woods for a spring luncheon meeting of the Beverly Hills center of the Infant Welfare society today. The Beverly Hills, the Kenwood Social Service, and the South Shore centers of the society will benefit from a horse show at the South Shore Country club June 11 and 12. After further plans for the show have been discussed guests at Mrs. Freeman's will hear Mrs. Charles Upham review Dr. Lin Yutang's book, "The Importance of Living."

Eleanor Lippincott Weds Chester N. Goltra Today.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Welles Lippincott to Chester Nelson Goltra, son of Dr. and Mrs. Chester John Goltra of Evanston, will take place today at 4:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Evanston. A small reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard R. Lippincott, in Wilmette.

Mrs. Edgar Hill Latham Jr., who will be Miss Lippincott's only attendant, arrived with her husband from Palm Beach last Tuesday. Sidney Goltra, who will be best man for his cousin, arrived yesterday from his home in Cincinnati. After a short wedding trip Mr. Goltra and his bride will be at home in a garage apartment they have taken adjoining the Country Club of Evanston.

After a winter of serious musical programs the Lake View Musical society has decided to have its last meeting as gay and whimsical as possible. So today at the annual spring luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Blackstone hotel the members of the society will stage a frolics called "Snowflakes and the Seven Snorks," especially written by member composers. Among those who have been invited to be special guests are Sonia Sharnova, Rudolph Ganz, Miss Helen Howe, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mosser, Mrs. James Schuman, Albert Getzworth, Edward Barry, Mrs. Clifford Caldwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Voegeli.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham and Edna Kellogg in New York.

Mrs. Ernest R. Graham and her niece, Miss Edna Kellogg, have gone to New York for a brief stay. Mrs. Graham's plans for the summer are uncertain; she may go abroad or she may return to Palm Beach, where she has leased for a year the Seward Webb place. Miss Anna Fitzu, who has joined the faculty of the Chicago Conservatory of Music, is living at the Congress hotel.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations announces a luncheon address by M. W. Fodor at 12:30 o'clock next Friday in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Mr. Fodor, a central European newspaper correspondent, will discuss "South of Hitler." The annual meeting of the council will be held that day.

The Woman's Athletic club announces a lecture on "We Think—The Making of Public Opinion," by Barclay Acheson at 11:30 o'clock next Friday. Mr. Acheson is associate editor of a magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Graves (Eleanor Cheney) are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter Saturday in Evanston hospital. She will be named Eleanor Favill for her maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Horace Kent Tenney. The baby is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Goddard Cheney and of Mrs. Lucy C. Graves, all of Winnetka.

HAROLD TEEN—FED UP WITH THE HOT FOOT

Youthfully Styled Jumper Frock

Only the slim figure can wear a suspender, or "jumper" frock, and look well in it. It takes a slim waist and high, youthful bustline to do justice to the girlish lines of a dress like this, so we've designed this frock in junior sizes only. It's a grand model for the home, gardening, active and spectator sports. The skirt has an overall top and buckles where the straps join the bodice. The waistline is curved up in a smart line, and no belt is necessary to this dress, since its perfect fit and the lovely figure beneath it only are needed to show off the beauty of the design. The blouse has a Peter Pan collar trimmed with the same braid that lends color to the cuff bands on the puffed sleeves. A grand idea is to use a printed skirt with a plain blouse trimmed in harmony with the print. Or you may unite two plain shades.

Style No. 2057 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19 years. Size 15 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39 inch material, with 1 1/2 yards of braid for the blouse. The jumper requires 2 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.

SPORTS WEAR—Hollywood fashions, teen age apparel, budget dresses, hints about accessories, travel togs, formal for starchy nights, clothes for children, how to plan a sewing room—all included in the Tribune's new 28 page book of Clotilde Fashions for summer, 1938. Scarcely any two cooks or two cooks agree on what is a fudge cake. Personally, we believe the fudge cake is chiefly in the icing. Here are three "fudge" cakes from our collected favorites. Readers, decide: What is a fudge cake?

Fudge Cake.

[For Ten Inch Loaf Pan.]
4 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup granulated sugar
3 unbeaten eggs
2 1/2 cups sifted cake flour

Melt chocolate in milk over hot water and blend with a rotary beater. Add brown sugar and stir until smooth. Cool. Combine vegetable shortening, salt, vanilla, and soda. Add granulated sugar gradually, and cream the mixture until it becomes light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add small amounts of flour alternately with the chocolate mixture, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into 10 by 10 by 1 1/2 inch pan which has been greased. Bake at 350 degrees for 55 minutes. Frost with white fudge frosting.

Fudge Cake.

[Three 8-Inch Layers.]
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup cocoa
2 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup sour milk or buttermilk

Add boiling water slowly to cocoa, making a smooth paste. Cool. Sift together flour, soda, and baking powder. Cream shortening and add sugar gradually, beating it in well. Add unbeaten egg yolks and beat well. Add vanilla. Now alternate flour mixture and milk or buttermilk, beating after each addition until the batter is smooth. Add cocoa mixture and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in wax paper lined pans at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Cool and spread layers with fudge icing.

Fudge Cake.

[8 by 8 Inch Loaf.]
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
2 squares chocolate, melted
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts

Sift flour, measure and sift several times with baking powder and salt. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and beat well. Add egg, then melted chocolate, blending well. Add flour and milk alternately, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition. Add vanilla and nuts. Bake in a greased loaf pan for one hour or until done. Frost with fudge frosting.

Give the average bridge expert a large and admiring gallery and his "playing to the grand stand" will follow as the night of the day. THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Maybe you read about the Hollywood director who just wordlessly hands out a card to all comers before they have a chance to speak. The card reads "No, we don't know who's going to play Scarlett."

We're considering having a placard made—only we'll wear it in our hat—reading "No, we don't believe any one can give a lifetime permanent, outside of, mebbe, the Lord!"

Here, in case you're not already bored to death with the whole hula-balo is the dope on the whole business:

In the first place, it was press agents and publicists who went overboard on the whole thing. The barber who puts a fancy price on the haircuts that encourage a wave hasn't, at least to our knowledge, used the idiotic term "lifetime permanent." He has been extremely cautious in his claims—sticking to the truth, which is that hair with some natural spring can be encouraged to wave by a certain kind of cutting.

Not he, but his enthusiasts have spread the completely phony gospel that this can be done to all types of hair. It can't. The shops that offer the service are rejecting more customers than they tell about.

In the second place cutting to encourage a wave isn't a new idea. It's very old. And so, we might add, are the sort of hairdresses carried with it, but that is beside the point. Such cuts have been known by various names—"layer cuts," "wave cuts," "curly cuts," and even "chisel cuts." There's something to be said for this last name, we think, considering the price some people are getting for 'em!

If your hair has some natural spring and you want it encouraged to a wave by cutting it's easy to find a hairdresser to do it. It will take a flock of cuts and lots of "push ups," but your ends will still need a permanent unless you stick to a coiffure similar to the late, unlamented post-war "shingle." But if you have any idea that a pair of shears or a razor will make waves wavy where they never waved before you'll be disillusioned.

ELANOR NANGLE.

4 1/2-plus honor tricks were, of course, highly impressive, and he looked for a response that would convey a picture of great strength to insure that the bidding be held open until game was reached. Since he intended to play the hand at no trump or clubs, he was not afraid to use a three-card minor suit as a bidding device. After the club rebid from North and the later announcement of two aces in North's hand, thirteen tricks appeared an excellent gamble. South was quite shocked to hear West's double and promptly redoubled. Incidentally West should have been horse-whipped for that double, as we shall soon see.

The spade jack was the opening lead. Declarer studied the dummy and saw that he could count 12 top tricks—three spades, two hearts, one diamond, and six clubs. The thirteenth trick could be made by capturing either the diamond king or the heart queen. But in view of West's double it was pretty obvious that neither of these cards could be tracked down by a finesse. Nevertheless the virtual assurance that West held both of those cards permitted the declarer to make the following pronouncement: "Well, I hope my dear friend on my left, who so kindly doubled, had at least a fairly sound double, because if he did he's going to give up either the heart queen or the diamond king at the eleventh trick." I hasten to say that I do not approve this sort of "big shot" gloating. But the fact remains that declarer made good his boast.

He ran off three spade tricks, cashed the diamond ace and the heart ace, and then ran the clubs, discarding his own queen and four of diamonds on the fifth and sixth club. The sixth club, the eleventh trick, did to West precisely what declarer had prophesied. Before he discarded on the sixth club West held the blank diamond king and the Q-10 of hearts. Declarer had kept the KJ of hearts and dummy still had left the diamond jack and a low heart. Obviously West could not discard without sinking the ship; to throw away the diamond king would promote dummy's jack, whereas to blank the heart queen would make declarer's king and jack perfectly good. Naturally West chose the lesser of two evils, i. e., he held on to the diamond king and threw the ten of hearts in the wild hope that declarer then would finesse hearts. But having made his announcement, declarer made no such mistake. He led the heart from dummy, went up with the king, and cashed the jack for the thirteenth trick.

Without the all-revealing double it is extremely likely that declarer would have finessed either in hearts or diamonds for the thirteenth trick.

Sincerity, Charm, Grace, and Lovely Voice Assure Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright, 1938, By The Chicago Tribune. N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Four of the reigning screen lovelies combined their points of view on what makes a woman beautiful.

For years men have been selecting beauties, telling why each is lovely. While it is important, indeed, to get masculine opinions on the always popular subject, what beauties themselves believe vital ingredients in other women is enlightening.

The question, "What is the most important qualification that lends great beauty distinction to a woman?" was put to four outstanding women of the screen.

Norma Shearer opines that real feminine beauty cannot exist without sincerity. Artificiality and subterfuge will overshadow the most perfect physical acquirements and, in the eyes of her audience, that woman no longer will have appeal.

Joan Crawford advances the opinion that charm is woman's most important beauty weapon. A woman who creates a good first impression, and a lasting one, stands the best chance of being nominated to a high place in the modern beauty school of thought.

Myrna Loy, who stands ace high, as you know, in gentlemen's preference, gives the feminine voice the ace spot as a dominating influence in femme appeal. A lovely voice, says Myrna, is woman's greatest gift. Poets speak of the nightingale's voice but nary a rave do they utter about the beautiful feathers of the peacock.

Proving what? That a voice is the dominant factor. "Yes," says the lovely Loy, "if a woman would spend only one half the time on how to speak and what to say as she does on what to wear, when and how to wear it, you know what the answer would be just as she would find out for herself."

Jeanette MacDonald contributes grace as the only single item that will convince your world you have what it takes to win applause. To present a stationary picture is only a momentary impression. To move about gracefully is to bring beauty to life. And from a recent visit with the beautiful Jeanette I may tell you that she is one of those lovelies about whom the poet sang: "She walks in beauty."

PIRATES DEFEAT CUBS IN ELEVENTH, 4 TO 3

OFFICIALS ARRANGE GOLDEN GLOVES RULES TODAY

INTERNATIONAL CODE TO GOVERN STADIUM FIGHTS

Boxers Await Final Ring Drills.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
Before the Golden Gloves boxers and the champions of Europe go through their last ring drill this afternoon the group of referees and judges, who will decide the matches Wednesday night in the Stadium, will meet with the European officials, coaches, and representatives of the Central A. A. U. to discuss the rules. Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee, will preside at the luncheon at 12:15 today at the Medinah club. The European officials—Oscar Soderlund, Arthur de Kankovszky, Count Girardo Leonardi, and Dr. Franz Metzner—will attend. Coach Johnny Behr will represent the Golden Gloves team.

In principle, the amateur boxing rules for international and Olympic competition are the same as those used in this country. Rounds are three minutes and ten ounce gloves are used in all weight classes. Contestants wear jerseys in addition to their boxing trunks. But since the European fighters, with the exception of John Saunders of Ireland, are handicapped by language, instructions by the referee during any bout must be accompanied by gestures, so that the competitors understand thoroughly.

Use English Command.

The English words—stop, break, and box—have been adopted as part of the international rules, but when the referee wishes to indicate a major foul in international matches the word is stopped and the referee points to each judge to indicate clearly that a penalty of loss of points should be inflicted. The contestants are then ordered to resume fighting.

Each round is scored on the basis of 20 points and if a round is even the score is 20 to 20 for that round. The loser of a round can receive any point total less than 20. But scoring also will be discussed at the luncheon today to insure approximately similar deductions for the boy losing the round.

It is considered likely that, as last year, there will be three officials outside of the ring to decide each match. These will be two judges and one referee. The referee in the ring will watch the boxers, call penalties, instruct them when to break and when to box, but he will not have a score card.

It is a compliment to the Golden Gloves referees and judges, who have officiated in all of the international Golden Gloves matches, that they have been praised highly by the visitors from Europe. Last year the decisions were particularly fair in the opinion of the men from the International federation.

The Rev. Joseph O. King greets John Saunders, featherweight champion on the European boxing team which meets the Chicago Golden Gloves champions in the Stadium Wednesday night, after Saunders had attended the annual mass of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at St. Patrick's church yesterday.

Meet Mr. Vogt, the German Puncher with Horse Sense!

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Sunday afternoon crowd lined up later than usual in the Medinah club gymnasium, where the champion boxers of Europe are nearing the end of their training for the annual All-Europe-Chicago Golden Gloves match in the Stadium on Wednesday night.

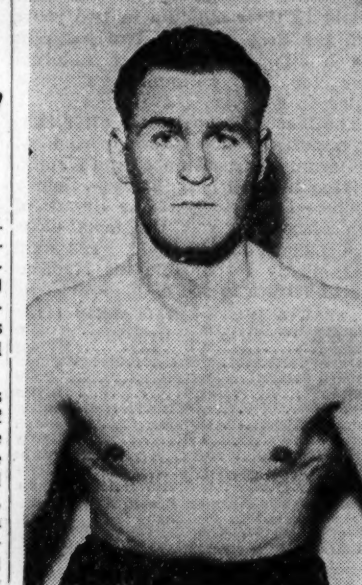

The fans have heard fantastic stories of Europe's champion knock-outer, Herr Richard Vogt of Hamburg, Germany, personal friend of Adolf Hitler. Herr Richard has made 50 of his 135 opponents listen to the chirps of the birds.

The late afternoon gym hangers-on were rewarded. Vogt, perfectly conditioned, a tall man with extremely long arms and legs, did not actually knock any one unconscious in this section, but his first sparring mate did call for a substitute before Herr Richard got in the required three rounds prescribed by the coach of Europe's team.

He's a Horseman.

Herr Richard easily could play the part of the clean-up hitter in Murderer's Row. He will have to be all of that before he can make Chicago's Linto Guerrieri, who was developed in Rockford's Golden Gloves tournament, call for a song from the birdie club. Linto doesn't like singing, particularly when stretched out upon his back. But more about Herr Richard.

It isn't his boxing that has made him a favorite with Herr Hitler. Max

Richard Vogt of Germany, light heavyweight member of the European team, who is noted in Europe as a trainer of trotting horses and the possessor of a tremendous punch.

DAUBER CREATES A SCRAMBLE FOR 3 YEAR OLD TITLE

Future Event Must Settle Championship.

Baltimore, Md., May 15.—(P)—Dauber's great, mud-speckled Preakness triumph placed in the hands of some future turf event today the scrambling of the race for 3 year old honors.

Just a year ago the speedy War Admiral already had blazed most of his trail to that title with triumphs in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. The Samuel Riddle colt's victory in the 1937 Belmont stakes won that crown for him.

Now it appears that a three-way duel among Dauber, Lawrin, the Derby winner, and Stagehand, wonder colt of the Pacific coast, will be needed to stamp the name on this year's title.

Point Dauber for Belmont Stakes.

Richard Handlen, trainer for William C. du Pont Jr., said today Dauber will point for the mile and a half Belmont stakes June 4. He will leave for the New York track tomorrow morning.

Dauber's great drive through Pimlico's mud after his normal slow start proved his trainer's liking for longer distances for the du Pont colt. With that in view, Handlen said Dauber will not go in the Withers mile at Belmont Saturday.

The son of Pennant, given a perfect ride by Jocky Maurice (Moose) Peters, was 6 1/2 lengths off the pace at the half mile post yesterday, but moved up fast on the outside to prove again what he showed in the Derby—that he is one of the year's greatest stretch runners.

Dauber's Time Impressive.

He covered the muddy mile and three-sixteenths distance in the impressive time of 1:59.45, three seconds over the track record set last Wednesday by Pompoon on a fast course.

The great performance labels him as the horse to beat in the Belmont stakes. His showing there, Handlen said, will determine whether the chestnut colt is to run in the Arlington Classic at Arlington Park, Chicago, in July.

The Classic also is scheduled to draw Maxwell Howard's Stagehand and H. M. Wolf's Lawrin.

Stagehand and Dauber are old opponents of the turf. Dauber ran third to Stagehand and Can't Wait in the Santa Anita Grade A handicap, a mile race, and second to Stagehand in the Derby there at a mile and an eighth a week later.

Contents Dauber Was Bumped.

The Lawrin-Dauber clash in the Kentucky Derby left much to be settled in a future meeting. Jockey Peters is contended after that race Dauber was bumped.

Stagehand was kept from the Derby and the Preakness by coughing.

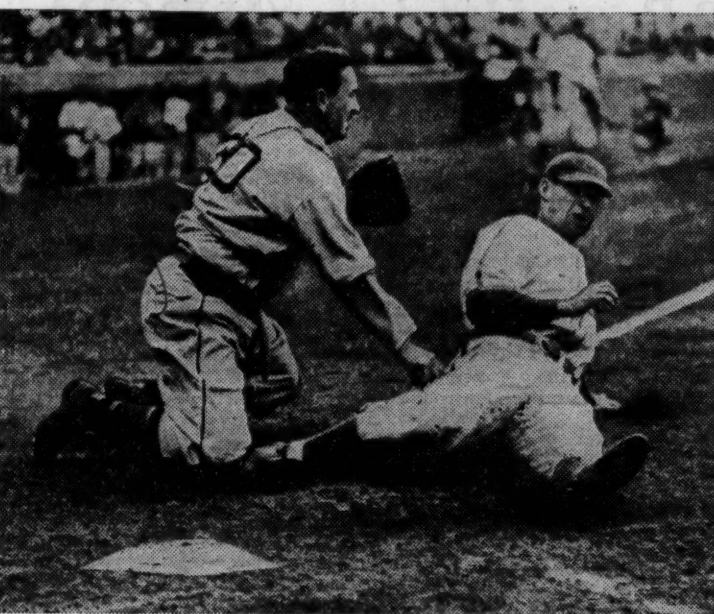

The surprise of the forty-eighth running of the Preakness came from Cravat, Townsend G. Martin's 67 to 1 shot. He came from nowhere to foil Dauber across the finish line, with Hal Price Headley's Menow third.

GEORGE SUTTON, HANDLESS CUE STAR, IS DEAD

Toledo, O., May 15.—(P)—George H. Sutton, 68 years old, pool and billiard expert despite a handicap imposed early in life when he lost both hands in a sawmill accident, died of a heart attack here today in his camp car. During the last year he toured the country, lecturing and appearing in exhibitions as an employee of a Chicago billiard company.

Despite his handicap, George H. Sutton competed on equal terms with all but the very front rank of professional billiard players, and in exhibitions he had defeated some of the leaders. He had toured the country annually for thirty-five years.

And This Would Have Won the Game

Clay Bryant, Cub pitcher, is cut down at the plate with the run which would have given his team victory over the Pirates in Wrigley field yesterday. Bryant, who had gone in as a pinch runner for Joe Marty in the ninth inning, attempted to come home from second on a hit by Stanley Hack, but Lloyd Waner's perfect throw to Al Todd ended the inning. The Pirates won in the eleventh, 4 to 3.

In the Wake of the News

THE Union of South Africa has invited the National Amateur Athletic union track and field committee to send a team here after the American title meet in Buffalo. . . . If the invitation is accepted, the boys may have to arrange to take a cow or two with them. . . . South African officials are willing to guarantee all expenses and maintenance, but they will not provide milk for the athletes. . . . Milk is a scarce and highly prized commodity in South Africa, and it seems the last American team to visit the Union drank up practically all the profits. . . . A. C. My Dance.

Some like the quaint square dances that our grandpas used to know And some prefer the two-step when they're in a social trance; But when I dream of rhythm, I just naturally go Back to the measured movement of the old St. Vitus dance.

I never did a hornpipe nor a tap dance in my time. The highland fling was off my list when I went out to France; But when I've felt the scintillating urge of the sublime, I've yielded to the rhythm of the old St. Vitus dance.

Let people do the rumba if they must be up to date. Or dance the hula hula till their neighbors look askance; Since youth I've always tried to be quite modest and sedate. And so you'll find me weaving in an old St. Vitus dance. T. E. B.

THE WAKE UPON ITS DEFENDERS FRIENDS.

TWO HITS OFF ROOT BREAK UP SERIES FINAL

Chicago Leaves 17 Runners Stranded.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
The Cubs refused to put themselves on speaking terms with opportunity yesterday. They devoted their day's work to getting men on bases and leaving them there, the upshot of this strange procedure being an eleven inning struggle in which they tumbled before the Pirates and 15,494 spectators in the final of the series.

The score was 4 to 3 and it would have been different if seventeen Cub batters who reached first base had traveled farther than third.

The day was another disappointing one for Bill Lee, although he wasn't responsible for the finishing touch in the eleventh. Lee's sixth effort to turn out a complete game ended in the seventh when he was removed for a pinch hitter. Then Jack Russell served through two innings and lastly came old Charles Root. The veteran yielded a single to Arky Vaughan with one out in what proved to be the last inning. A sacrifice put Vaughan on second and he registered the decisive run a moment later on a single to right by John Dickshot.

Such a Waste of Hits.

The impotency of the Cubs was painfully noticeable in all except one of the eleven innings during which three pitchers performed against them. Although they had a three run total by the end of the fifth, they also had seven left on the base paths. In the sixth, three reached base with only one out, but they died. Two were stranded in each of the next three innings. In the tenth, for the first and only time, nobody reached base, and in the eleventh the seventeenth man expired after reaching base with none out.

Lee was a slick pitcher until he began experimenting with the home run ball. An extra base thump by Carl Reynolds, installed as right fielder for the first time, gave Lee a one run lead in the second. That vanished when Bill Brubaker notched a homer with one out on base in the fifth. The Cubs bounced back into the lead in the same inning, but in the sixth another homer, this one by Johnny Rizzo, tied the count. And it remained that way until Root faltered in the eleventh.

Reynolds Gets a Double.

The Cubs weren't entirely responsible for their first run in the second. They had a willing helper in Young. After two were out Reynolds made the proper sort of 1938 debut by doubling to the wall in right center. After stopping at second he observed that Young was fumbling the throw in, so skipped to third. Then Hartnett hit a funny twisting grounder to Brubaker and beat it for a single, Reynolds scoring. Just to make doubly sure of his hit the portly Gaby slid into first, which was quite a sight in itself. Lee ended the inning by fanning.

For a moment in the third the Cubs were hot on the trail of another run or two, but were thrown off the scent. Hack started off with a roller to Brubaker, after which Herman singled to center. A fly ball to Rizzo finished Collins, but Lazzeri made amends for his first inning knockout by singling past Young, putting Herman on third. Everything seemed swell when a wicked line started off Galan's bat in the direction of right field.

FORM PLAYERS FIND AURORA STEEDS CAN READ

37 Per Cent of Favorites
Get Home First.

Backers of the favorites have nothing to complain about during the first two weeks of the Illinois racing season at the Aurora course.

The statistics show that 37 per cent of the choicest have been able to get home first.

That's quite a percentage at any race track, although it is not a record. However, racing is considered formful when 35 per cent of the favorites win.

The Aurora record has been made chiefly by cheap horses. The best steed at the track either have not been paraded to the post or haven't seen action often. The track has been made under all sorts of running conditions, although the track has been either good or fast on a majority of the twelve afternoons on which programs have been offered.

Jokey Ryan Makes Comeback.

The feature of the meeting so far has been the battle for the jokey leadership and the comeback Jokey Paul Ryan, a Chicago boy, has made.

Ryan, R. Conley, J. G. Wilson, Tony Latoro, and J. Richards are all in the thick of the fight for riding honors.

About this time last year Jokey Ryan reached stardom. Then he lost form just as rapidly as he had leaped into the spotlight. During the winter he jumped from one track to another. Seldom was he able to win a race. His backers finally turned a cold shoulder to him.

Regains Lost Skill.

Back at Aurora this spring horses again ran kindly for him. He regained his lost skill. Nearly every afternoon he makes one or more trips to the winners' circle.

Last year Ryan rode for Trainer Dick Watts. This season he is riding free-lance. His splendid horsemanship has given him the pick of mounts in almost every race in which he rides.

Olympic Skate Group to Seek $15,000 Fund

The United States Olympic speed skating committee yesterday adopted a budget of $15,000 at its organization meeting in the Allerton hotel.

The United States may send four entries in each of four events to the winter Olympic games in Sapporo, Japan, the number depending on the results of the tryouts and the success of the financial drive.

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic association, presided, outlining the general requirements for American participation in the 1940 games. Final tryouts for the speed skating team are to be held early next January, at a place yet to be selected, it was announced by Grover R. Peterson of Milwaukee, who was elected chairman of the committee.

Open Campaign at Once.

The campaign to raise funds will begin at once in an effort to raise the amount before the contenders are selected. Funds are to be raised by benefit events, tryout guarantees, and the contributions of sportsmen.

Frank M. Kaltefleiter of Chicago, former president of the Amateur Skating union of the United States, and the 1936 Olympic skating champion, was elected secretary. Pete Miller, Chicago park district director and C. Y. O. skating coach, was elected representative to the American Olympic committee and coach of the 1940 Olympic speed skating team.

Hodous Named Manager.

Wilfred P. Hodous of Cleveland, president of the A. S. U., was elected manager, and Charles J. Gevecker of St. Louis, former president of the O. A. A. U., was named trainer. Other members attending were Louis D. Dennis, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Harry B. Taber, Buffalo, N. Y.; and Henry Kamper, St. Louis, Mo.

GERMANS BREAK RECORD TO WIN A. A. U. LIFT TITLE

The German-American Athletic club exceeded the Central A. A. U. record of 3,065 pounds by lifting 3,080 pounds, yesterday to win the Midwest A. A. U. weight lifting championship in the Madison Athletic club.

Ray Garcia, Central A. A. U. light-weight titleholder, paced the winners with a total of 570 pounds, 5 below his own mark. Tony Petrolino of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. broke the 151-pound record in the two arm press with 235 pounds, 10 above the old mark. He snatched 220 and jerked 290 for a combined record total of 735 pounds.

The Englewood Y. M. C. A. team finished second with a total of 3,045 pounds, and the Milwaukee A. A. U. team placed third with 2,965. In last place was the Chicago Weight Lifting club, with 2,930.

HOWARD CHATT WINS 2 EVENTS, PLACES IN THIRD

Howard Chatt placed first in two events and third in another in the twenty cast of the Illinois Casting club in Washington park yesterday. Chatt scored a 92 in the dry fly event, an 88 in the wet fly event, and an 86 in the 1/2 ounce accuracy.

Results:

DRY FLY ACCURACY—Won by Howard Chatt, 92; Noel Weaver and Nick Schneider tied for second, 91.

WET FLY ACCURACY—Won by Howard Chatt, 91; Noel Weaver, second, 86; Floyd Spitzer, third, 80.

1/2 OUNCE ACCURACY—Won by Noel Weaver, 87; Nick Schneider, second, 85; Donaldson, third, 84.

2 Bouts Head Marigold Fight Card Tonight

Harold Brown, west side welterweight, and Billy Celebre, Rockford, will share headline honors with Alex Kettles and Charley Belanger on the fight card tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Weight for the Brown-Celebre match, which is set for ten rounds, is 155 pounds.

The Belanger-Kettles meeting is booked for six rounds, two less than the distance sought by Kettles. Belanger defeated Kettles in six rounds in a previous bout in Marigold Gardens April 25. Kettles, however, finished stronger than his opponent from Winnipeg, Man. Other matches include those between Tony Zale, Gary, Ind., middleweight, and Bobby La Monte, and Lou Laurie, Cleveland featherweight, and Eddie Shapiro.

Ole Olson and Jack Conley will meet in the windup bout of the wrestling show this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Fred Grubner and Rudy Strongberg are opponents in the semi-final. Other matches involve Walter Palmer and Jack [Bad Man] Brown, Buck Jones and Phil Malloy, and Bull Curley and Joe Orawley.

Max Marek, Catholic Youth organization heavyweight, asks $1,000 for a ten round encounter with Buddy Knox of Dayton, O., in Sparta stadium June 1. Davey Day, who may clash with Nick Camarata in Marigold arena, June 13, is signed to meet Normant Quarles of Hendersonville, N. C., in an eight round preliminary to the forthcoming Barney Ross-Henry Armstrong welterweight title fight in Madison Square garden bowl. After his scheduled bout with Al Ettore in Philadelphia, May 23, Jimmy Adamek, midland, Mich., heavyweight, is to appear in Indianapolis May 27. Lem Franklin, 1937 International Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, is training for an engagement in Cleveland Friday.

John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight title holder, who appears in a nontitle match in Atlanta, Ga., Thursday, anticipates a bout with Tony Galento of Orange, N. J., in Philadelphia next month. Gunnar Barlund, heavyweight title claimant of Finland, will return to his homeland May 28 after an American invasion which included a knockout conquest of Buddy Baer. He will be accompanied by his manager, Paul Damski. Damski will second Walter Neusel in a 15 round bout against Tommy Farr in London July 15. Bob Nestell, California heavyweight, has been refused permission by the Illinois boxing commission to meet Jimmy Adamek in Mills stadium June 8. Einar Holquist, Chicago welterweight, is preparing for a comeback under the management of Sam Buxbaum. Eddie Long, part manager of Young Jack Blackburn, south side light heavyweight, said Blackburn will box under his right name of Johnny Milen in the future. Following his expected release from Evangelical Deaconess hospital June 1, Benny Ray, manager of Mills arena, will leave for a two week's rest at Frankie Battaglia's health resort near Elkhorn, Wis.

RAIN CONTINUES AND WHITE SOX HEAD FOR HOME

Open on Own Field with Boston Tomorrow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Cleveland, O., May 15.—Rain, which soaked the Cleveland stadium and washed away the White Sox-Indian game today, was welcomed to the Sox for the usual hospital reasons. And besides, the postponement allowed the Chicago lads to hop on an afternoon train for Chicago.

Tomorrow they will put in their third successive day off, waiting for the Boston Red Sox, who, as they say in Boston, are "pennant mad" at the current moment, to move into Chicago on Tuesday.

Sox Did Their Bit.
The White Sox contributed one game to the winning streak which on Saturday lifted the Red Sox to first place in the American league standings. The Sox made eleven hits off Lefty Grove in the one game they played in Boston, but were able to derive only two runs therefrom. The Red Sox were luckier against Frank Gabler. They made eight hits, bled into four runs, though they didn't employ their familiar home run technique that day.

Johnny Whitehead, who returned to work after a long layoff here today, will pitch the opener against the Red Sox on Tuesday. Johnny, you may recall, appeared as a finisher in the ninth and protected a one run lead by setting down three Indian batters in a row, the third of whom, Earl Averill, he struck out.

Busy Days Ahead.
Today's postponement was the fifth for the Sox since last Sunday and increased their number of prospective double-headers to seven.

Only one, with the Indians, is scheduled for Comiskey park.
Following the three game series with Boston, the Yankees come to town for two games. The Senators follow with three more, after which the A's close the east's western swing with two Detroit natures for three games after Connie Mack's boys leave before the Sox again swing east.

His Hole in One Is Shot Into Another's Pocket

Del Monte, Cal., May 15.—(AP)—A brassie shot by Carl Fricke of Altadena today landed in the pocket of H. P. Eastman of San Gabriel. Eastman said later he felt a slight blow but had no idea it was caused by a flying golf ball. Peter Hay, Del Monte professional, ruled the ball should be dropped where Eastman felt the blow. The unusual shot was made on the approach to the eighteenth green, within sight of several other golfers.

RED SOX BEAT SENATORS, 4-3, BEHIND GROVE

Boston, Mass., May 15.—(AP)—The Red Sox swept their three game series with the Washington Senators today by taking the finale, 4 to 3. They then headed westward boasting an eight game winning streak and leading the American league by a game and a half.

Lefty Grove, although yielding thirteen hits while his opponent, Monte Weaver, was allowing only eight, bore down in the tight spots and escaped with his sixth straight victory.

Gene Desautels, Boston catcher, came through with the hit that settled the ball game in the eighth—a two base drive down the third base line that scored Manager Joe Cronin from third.

The Red Sox held a 1 to 0 lead until the third, when Zeke Bonura hit one of Grove's pitches over the left field wall with Buddy Lewis on base.

Cardinals Win from Reds in Tenth, 12 to 11

St. Louis, Mo., May 15.—(AP)—After holding a commanding seven run lead in the fourth, the Cardinals had to resort to the pinch hitting of Pepper Martin to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 12 to 11, in the tenth inning today.

The Reds tied the score at 11 to 11 in the eighth and then missed a chance to win in the ninth when Harry Craft was caught trying to score after Don Gutierrez dropped the ball. Mickey Owen tripped and Pepper Martin broke up the battle with a pinch single. Curt Davis, who went in with one out in the ninth, was credited with the victory.

Cubs Open Series with Giants in East Tomorrow

The Cubs will arrive in New York late this afternoon but will have no work on their hands until tomorrow, when they open a three game series in the Polo Grounds with the champion Giants. Tex Carleton will face the title holders in the first game.

Three members were dropped from Charley Grimm's group yesterday, bringing the squad down to the twenty-three player limit which becomes effective May 23. Outfielder Coaker Triplett was transferred to Minneapolis, infielder Bob Mattick to Indianapolis and Pitcher Newell Kimball to Birmingham. All are scheduled to return to the Cubs.

Diz Dean will complete his two weeks of leg exercise Wednesday, but doesn't want to take the two additional weeks prescribed for reconditioning his arm. Diz informed the manager yesterday that he would be ready to take his turn Wednesday afternoon, but Grimm has different ideas.

Carl Reynolds' appearance in right field yesterday was his first of the season. If he hits, he'll stay there.

Yesterday's game was delayed until fourteen minutes after the scheduled hour. The ground attendants had to be given time to peel off the tarpaulin which hurriedly was spread when a shower hit the park.

Rip Collins started out as if he might equal or better the league record of twenty-one putouts for a first baseman in the nine innings game. In the first three innings Rip had eight of them.

Cubs Lose to Pirates, 4 to 3, in 11th Inning field, but Brubaker spared it to conclude the inning.

The first hit off Lee came after ten Pirates in a row had been retired, all defensive work being handled by the infielders. The string snapped on Lloyd Waner's single to right with one out in the fourth. Rizzo then lined to Marty and Galan handled Vaughan's fly. The Cubs also had a little fun in the fourth. Reynolds tripped to right with one out. Hartnett wouldn't bite on the pitches John was offering as tempters, so walked. Lee's ambition to assist his own cause was thwarted by a pop foul and the third out was recorded when Dickshot grabbed Hack's well hit liner.

A pair of hits off Lee in the fifth produced two runs and gave the Pirates a momentary 2 to 1 lead. After two were out Young singled to left for the second hit off Lee. Then Brubaker batted his homer into the bleachers in left center. Lazzari threw out Tobin and not long after this annoyed the enemy pitcher in a different way.

Three Hits, Two Cub Runs.
The Cubs notched only three hits in the fifth but made them count for two runs by doing the hitting before any one was retired. Herman led off with a scratch single to Young. In response to a hit and run sign, Collins cracked a two bagger into right center and the homer scored. Lazzari singled to center, but the ground was heavy and, as there was none out, Collins stopped at third. Galan hoisted a deep fly to Rizzo, and Collins scored after the catch, putting the Cubs back in front, 3 to 2, but not for long.

Lee's progress in the sixth was unhampered until after Handley and Lloyd Waner had been thrown out. Lee's first pitch to Rizzo was wide, so he was extra careful about getting the next one over. Rizzo slapped it over the left field wall for his season's first homer, tying the score. Vaughan walked. Tobin singled past Lazzari, and a pass to Dickshot loaded the bags. Lee escaped on Young's foul to Hartnett.

Cubs Fold Up Again.
Rain began to fall in the home sixth and the Cubs thought a few runs were going to sprout, but their guess was wrong. The first happening was a pass to Hartnett. With a 5 and 2 count, Lee tried to bunt a wide pitch and missed. Hack walked, whereupon Tobin was excused for the day. Reesner Brown stepped into the party and walked Herman, filling the bases with one out. Collins then popped to Brubaker and Lazzari was tossed out by Todd on a tap in front of the plate.

Hits by Reynolds and Hartnett also went to waste in the seventh. With two out O'Dea batted for Lee and grounded to Young.

Lloyd Waner put Russell on the spot by leading off with a single to right in the eighth. Russell helped himself a little by fanning Rizzo. A couple of his mates assisted him the rest of the way. Vaughan fled close to the line in short left and Waner felt so sure about his being a hit he moved down to second. After a hard run Galan made the catch, so Waner darted back toward first but not in time. Collins reached out with his gloved hand caught the ball on the bounce and completed a double play.

Another Chance Fades.
Grimm's boys did an inglorious flop in the eighth. Hack opened with a single to center and Herman singled to left. Brown was yanked without formality and Swift put a quick stop to the threat. He fanned Collins, who got one of the strikes by bunting foul. Swift also fanned Lazzari. Galan then popped to Vaughan.

The Cubs were within a few feet of victory in the ninth. Marty walked and Reynolds sacrificed. Hartnett was passed, purposely. Cavarretta batted for Russell and lifted a fly to short right, but Dickshot grabbed it. Bryant went to second to run for Marty. Bryant raced for the plate on Hack's single to center, but was nailed on Waner's perfect throw to Todd.

The Cubs were within a few feet of victory in the ninth. Marty walked and Reynolds sacrificed. Hartnett was passed, purposely. Cavarretta batted for Russell and lifted a fly to short right, but Dickshot grabbed it. Bryant went to second to run for Marty. Bryant raced for the plate on Hack's single to center, but was nailed on Waner's perfect throw to Todd.

Lee's progress in the sixth was unhampered until after Handley and Lloyd Waner had been thrown out. Lee's first pitch to Rizzo was wide, so he was extra careful about getting the next one over. Rizzo slapped it over the left field wall for his season's first homer, tying the score. Vaughan walked. Tobin singled past Lazzari, and a pass to Dickshot loaded the bags. Lee escaped on Young's foul to Hartnett.

ST. PAUL TRIAL OVER WAGNER LABOR ACT TODAY

U.S. Fights 22 Coal Firms, 47 Individuals.

London, Ky., May 15.—(AP)—Uncle Sam's first criminal prosecution under the Wagner act insuring labor the right to organize began in federal district court here today.

The defendants are twenty-two coal corporations, twenty-four individuals, and twenty-three former or present law enforcement officers of Harlan county, center of southeastern Kentucky's rich soft coal fields.

Violence Told in Record.

Stories of dynamiting, bombings, and roadside shootings were told by the record by overheard miners and by organizers of the United Mine Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, but responsibility for the violence was disclaimed by then Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton and spokesmen for the operators' association.

The indictments were returned by Federal District Judge H. Church Ford, who will preside at the trial, overruled demurrers and set the case for trial.

What Government Charges.

The government charges former Sheriff Middleton used "the power of his office to appoint the other said law officer defendants as deputies sheriffs, thereby giving them greater authority and power to threaten, beat, and kill..." and that he used his office to protect his co-defendants from "legal punishment."

The government has summoned approximately 200 witnesses.

FRANCE CALLS ON CITIZENS TO AID ARMS LOAN

Seeks $140,000,000 from Investors.

PARIS, May 15.—(AP)—In a manner reminiscent of world war loan drives the national defense government of Premier Edouard Daladier sought today to excite public interest on the eve of opening subscriptions of a $140,000,000 arms loan.

Army planes roared over Paris and provincial centers "bombarding" Sunday strollers with red, white, and blue leaflets. Military bands paraded bearing banners with the slogan: "Subscribe." Radio stations, movies, and the press joined in the drive.

Appeals were made by Daladier, Gen. Edouard Nollet, president of the Independent National Defense fund, and Georges Rivolet, secretary general of the War Veterans' confederation.

First Test of Public Support.

The bonds will go on sale tomorrow in denominations of small as 100 francs (about $2.80) offered at the price of 98 ($2.75) in an effort to draw out hoardings. The loan will be the first test of public support for the government.

With Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet returning from the session of the league of nations council at Geneva, Daladier called a cabinet meeting for Tuesday to debate appointment of an ambassador to Rome to carry out negotiations for a French-Italian accord.

The talks in Rome have been handled for France by Chargé d'Affaires Jules F. Blondel. France has had no ambassador at the Italian capital since October, 1935, when Count Charles de Chambrun retired.

Prepare for Italian Pact.

Rene Doynel de Saint-Quentin, present ambassador to Washington, was named to succeed de Chambrun, but Italy refused to accept him unless he was accredited to King Victor Emmanuel as emperor of Ethiopia as well as monarch of Italy.

On Oct. 30, 1937, Premier Mussolini recalled Vittorio Cerruti, Italy's envoy to Paris, at a time when the Spanish civil war had further divided France and Italy, France favoring the Spanish government and Italy the insurgents.

The basis of the original dispute, however, was that France had joined fifty-one other nations in 1935 to apply economic pressure under the league of nations covenant against Italy for her war on Ethiopia.

Ayres Urges Railroads to Reduce Staffs

Cleveland, O., May 15.—(AP)—Real business recovery is doubtful until "radical remedies" are adopted for the nation's railroads, Col. Leonard P. Ayres held today. These "remedies," he said, should include "a considerable decrease in the number of employees."

The Cleveland statistician, asserting "there has been no general expansion of business since the announcement of the planing program a month ago," observed:

"The fact is that the wage bill of the railroads has become too great for the traffic to bear."

Suggests Legislation.

"Our railroad crisis can be cured only by the adoption of comprehensive legislation providing for rapid reorganization of insolvent lines, the merging of existing companies into a limited number of strong systems, the prompt abandonment of a large amount of nonessential branch mileage, and a considerable decrease in the number of employees."

Col. Ayres made his comments in the monthly business bulletin of the Cleveland Trust company, of which he is vice president.

His Views on Fixed Charges.

"Our railroad problem cannot be solved by mere reorganizations which reduce fixed charges by writing off bonded debts," he said.

"In February the railroads would have lost money even if they had no bonded debt at all. They did not even cover the costs of their operation. January and March were not much better."

"The attempt to carry through a recovery program without taking steps to restore confidence in railroad and utility investments is a little like undertaking to operate an automobile without repairing its one punctured tire."

FINDS NO SIGNS OF BETTERMENT IN STEEL BUYING

Steel buying shows no signs of improving in the near future, the magazine Steel said yesterday in its weekly review of the steel industry.

A tendency to await announcement of prices for this quarter delivery was said to be further restricting an already slow demand for steel.

Prices for third quarter delivery were announced last year as early as April 21, but no indication of announcements has been given this year and buyers are in no hurry to force the question, the journal said.

Operations in the steel industry receded slightly last week, ingot production being estimated at 30 per cent of theoretical capacity, compared with 31 per cent the preceding week.

Production rates were slightly lower in Chicago, Youngstown, Wheeling, Cleveland, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

"For the first time since the abortive rise in mid-March the composite of steelmaking scrap prices failed to decline last week, holding at $11.59," Steel said. "An apparent bottom has been reached. The iron and steel and the finished steel composites were unchanged."

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Killing Frosts

May 15, 1938.

KILLING frosts that hit THE TRIBUNE's Du Page county farm on Wednesday and Thursday nights of last week left a trail of dried and blackened foliage on tender plants in the gardens, orchards, and woodlands. The frosts were unusually heavy for the second week in May. Solid sheets of ice formed on pools and watering troughs, and thermometers at the farm registered as low as 25 degrees.

Most of the frost damage was confined to fruits and a few early vegetables. All the grapes were ruined. Some fear that the injury to the vines may affect next year's crop of grapes, because all the new growth was killed. Grapes grow on leafy shoots that come out from buds on year old wood, and the vines may not grow out again in time to develop sufficient fruiting wood for a good crop of grapes next year.

Many of the apples, pears, and cherries were damaged, especially on trees growing in valleys or on slopes that were in the paths of cold air currents. Most of the mulberries were killed or injured.

Tender Shoots Frozen.

Tender shoots of asparagus were frozen down to the ground. The plants are beginning to grow out again since the soil was soaked by rains yesterday. Tomato plants in the Curtis-Wright.

Investors' Guide: I see that Curtis-Wright has been earning more money in each letter. Please comment on this company.—E. S.

Answer: Sales and profits of the Curtis-Wright corporation, one of the world's leading manufacturers of air planes and airplane engines, have expanded sharply in the last two years due to larger military orders and increased demand for commercial planes. Despite the depression in most industries, net income in the first quarter of this year was nearly three times larger than in the first quarter of 1937 and the largest for any first quarter in the company's history. Unfilled orders on March 4, 1938, totaled $2,455,345, against $1,652,468 on March 12, 1934.

Curtis-Wright manufactures numerous types of planes and engines. The company's "Cyclone" and "Whirlwind" motors are in demand both by private and governmental buyers. Military planes made by Curtis-Wright include the "Hawk," "Falcon," "Shrike," "Raven," "Conqueror," "Osprey," and "Condor bomber." Commercial planes include the "Condor" transport plane, the "Sport," "Speedwing" and others.

Orders from the United States government have accounted for about half of total business in recent years. Export business usually accounts for around two-fifths of total sales. The Curtis-Wright export division does business in 38 countries.

Profit possibilities of Curtis-Wright have been improved since 1930 by a drastic retrenchment program which called for elimination of unprofitable lines and the coordination of others.

Net income in the first quarter of this year was $733,910, or 63 cents a Class A share, compared with $269,251, or 23 cents a share, in the corresponding period a year ago. The record of earnings in recent years follows:

Year	Sales	Net Income	Class A Share
1937	$24,118,084	$1,985,809	$1.71
1936	18,929,364	1,017,057	.88
1935	11,119,581	1,172,339	.91
1934	14,009,533	359,737	.31
1929	26,047,904	1,956,235	1.89

*Deficit.

The company has outstanding 1,158,300 shares of $2 noncumulative $1 par Class A stock and 7,527,670 shares of $1 par common. Only two dividends of 50 cents each have been paid on the Class A stock since the company was incorporated in 1929. No dividends have been paid on the common.

Curtis-Wright had total assets of $34,434,631 at the end of 1937. Current assets were $13,955,205, compared with current liabilities of $4,744,665.

AAA Fearful of Loan Kicks; Issues a Plea

Washington, D. C., May 15.—(AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration carried to wheat farmers today a plea that they accept a "reasonable" rate for forthcoming government loans on wheat.

The AAA took it for granted that a loan program would have to be inaugurated by harvest time. Loans are authorized by the new crop control law when new crop prospects exceed normal needs. A huge crop is in sight. The law gives the AAA authority to set the loan rate at between 60 and 86 cents a bushel.

Anticipating protests from wheat growers if the rate were fixed below the maximum, the AAA sent officials into the winter wheat belt of the Midwest and the soft wheat region of the Pacific northwest to find in advance for acceptance of a rate below that figure.

Officials said they expected great pressure from farmers for a maximum rate, inasmuch as the difference between a 75 and an 86 cent loan would mean more than $100,000,000 in immediate cash return to growers, on the basis of a 950,000,000 bushel harvest.

World Corn Harvesting.

There are six months in the year in which corn is harvested in some part of the world—January, March, April, May, September, and October. New South Wales harvests its corn in January, Argentina in March or April, and South Africa in April or May. Virtually all of the countries of Europe gather this crop in September and October. Most of the corn in the United States is harvested in October.

The United States is by far the leading producer of corn. In 1937, according to reports of the department of agriculture and the International Institute of Agriculture in Rome, corn crops in various countries compared as follows:

Country	Production (bushels)
United States	2,644,995,000
Albania	4,514,000
Argentina	336,168,000
Austria	7,133,000
Bulgaria	33,020,000
Canada	6,492,000
Czechoslovakia	13,511,000
Egypt	42,536,000
France	21,574,000
Germany	4,958,000
Greece	9,085,000
Hungary	105,975,000
Italy	126,920,000
Manchuria	83,184,000
Morocco	5,236,000
Rumania	166,731,000

Union of South Africa	86,408,000
Yugo-Slavia	209,949,000
all other countries	1,098,028,000

The total 1937 world production of 5,050,000,000 bushels was much larger than the 3,977,000,000 bushel production in 1936.

North America Wheat Outlook Best in Years

Seldom have official reports presented such an optimistic forecast for the North American wheat crop as occurred last week. The United States department of agriculture and the Canadian bureau of statistics both told of the best conditions in recent years. The American bureau estimated the prospective winter wheat crop at 754,000,000 bushels, the second largest on record.

Canadian statisticians and crop experts asserted the outlook for the spring wheat crop is the best in five or ten years. In 1928 Canada harvested 567,000,000 bushels of all wheat, the largest crop on record.

Corn Prices Range Narrowly.

As to corn, in which a lively export trade has developed, observers noted that for more than six months the price of May corn has held within a range of approximately 8 cents a bushel.

A record holding of cash corn on farms in the central west which farmers have been holding off the market for 50 cents a bushel at country loading stations has furnished the reservoir from which Europe has already been able to draw approximately 75,000,000 bushels in five and one-half months without disturbing the market to any large extent.

STANDARD OIL TELLS WORKERS OF TAX LOAD

'Humanized' Report Made by Seubert.

Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, made a special report to employees on the company's 1937 operations in the May issue of the Stanolind Record, company publication which will be issued today.

This move is in line with the practice followed by several large companies which this year have reported separately to their employees, as well as stockholders.

Declaring "taxes deserve some special attention," Seubert told employees that the company's total payments for this purpose, including taxes on products sold, were $103,924,580 in 1937. "A little more than 70 per cent above the amount paid just seven years ago."

Doubts Burden Will Be Eased.

"It cannot be hoped," he commented, "that this growing tax burden will be escaped as long as citizens want so much government and are willing to pay for it either directly or by having large taxes included in the prices charged for petroleum and other products. It can only be hoped that taxes will be imposed in a way that will discourage enterprise and the demand for products as little as possible."

In making the report, Seubert told employees that "a 'humanized' analysis of the year's results, prepared with special thought of the point of view of the employee, may be of considerable interest."

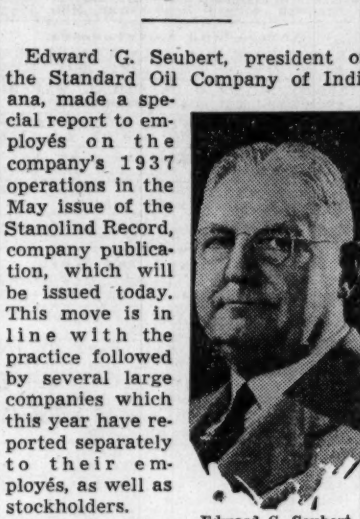

Discussing the "1937 financial statement in terms of employees," he said that total income from all sources of $373,196,301 was equal to $11,662 for each of the 32,000 employees. The average annual wage was $2,088, or about $40 a week. "Rent" to stockholders (dividends) equaled $1,138 per employee.

$20,842 Invested Per Worker.

Seubert said that the net worth of the business on Dec. 31, 1937, was $666,367,000, equivalent to $43.66 per share of stock.

"To employees," he added, "it is of much interest to note that stockholders have provided every one with tools, so to speak, worth $20,842. That is the amount they have invested in each of the 32,000 employees."

"Incidentally, since stockholders of this company numbered 93,408 at the end of 1937, their average investment, as per books, was about $7,136, and it took the investment of nearly three such average stockholders to keep each employee supplied with facilities for carrying on work."

Boat Departs with a Record Cargo of Corn

The Canadian steamship Le Moyne, largest grain carrier in the world, pulled slowly out of the Calumet river last night, her spacious holds filled with nearly 525,000 bushels of corn, the largest single shipment of corn ever loaded on the Great Lakes.

The grain is destined for transhipment through Montreal to the yawning maw of the European market. Europe's insatiable demand for corn has in the past two weeks shattered many records of Chicago grain elevators and the trade in general.

In filling her seven holds at Chicago the Le Moyne, prize property of Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., was no exception to the feat of shattering records. She is the largest vessel of any type operating on the Great Lakes, and is the largest ship ever to enter the port of Chicago.

New Bridge Opens Way.

Saturday Capt. C. E. Robinson brought his bow down from Sault Ste. Marie to enter the Calumet river for the first time. Until the new 106th street bridge was recently completed, the Le Moyne had been unable to traverse the river because of her 70 foot beam.

Built in 1928, the ship has an overall length of 613 feet, a depth of 29 feet, and can load 540,000 bushels of grain with a 20 foot draft. However, the slip at the Northwestern Grain elevator at 122d street and Torrence avenue, where the grain was shipped for Cargill, Inc., did not permit the boat to use its full capacity.

This was also a record single loading for the elevator, which handles about 65,000,000 bushels of grain annually. Between May 13 and 16 the elevator expects to load ten steamships with more than 3,000,000 bushels of corn, virtually all of it bound for Europe.

Big Job to Get to Lake.

With the vessel loaded late in the day, Capt. Robinson began his five hour task of warping the huge ship down the river to the lake. Normally he operates between Fort William and Kingston, Ont. On this trip he will go to Port Colborne, then through the Welland canal to Lake Ontario and Kingston.

The long carrier is too big to go through the St. Lawrence river. So at Kingston she will transfer the corn to five smaller vessels which will take the cargo to Montreal, the last stop before Europe.

RUSSIA EXPECTS LARGEST GRAIN CROP IN HISTORY

(Copyright 1938: By The New York Times.)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., May 15.—(Special.)—All conditions appear favorable for the production this year of the biggest grain crop in Russian history—larger even than last year's record harvest, estimated at slightly under 7,000,000,000 (115 million metric tons) and thus within sight of the goal of 7,000,000,000 to 8,000,000,000 which Dictator Josef Stalin set in 1935 for attainment within three or four years.

Today the government announced the total sown area (presumably for all crops and not merely grain) on May 10 was 138 million acres, compared with 132 million a year ago.

UTILITY SYSTEM TELLS SQUEEZE IN TVA POLICY

Must Sell or Face Ruinous Rivalry.

The National Power and Light company, owner of some of the properties being sought by the Tennessee Valley Authority and southern municipalities, told stockholders in its annual report yesterday that "our subsidiaries find themselves in the unfortunate position of being confronted with the necessity of selling their properties at what may be sacrifice prices or, in the alternative, facing destructive competition made possible by use of taxpayers' money."

Disclosures made in the report indicated that while the problem of governmental competition is growing, the odds against the privately owned utilities are being increased through imposition of heavier taxes by the various governing bodies, which thus are squeezing the power companies from both sides.

Seek to Buy Properties.

National Power and Light is the parent company of the Tennessee Public Service company, the electrical properties of which are sought by the TVA and the city of Knoxville, Tenn. A TVA-Knoxville bid of $7,500,000 for the Tennessee Public Service properties has been made and will be considered today at a meeting of the directors of National Power and Light company.

National Power's annual report said "this company is faced with an acute situation" as a result of the United States Supreme court's decision of Jan. 3 holding that utilities cannot question the constitutional right of the Public Works administration to make grants and loans to certain communities for the purpose of constructing electric systems to compete with privately owned properties.

"In explanation it may be said that PWA assistance consists of cash grants—outright gifts—of from 30 per cent to 45 per cent of the cost of constructing the competing systems and loans of additional funds at 4 per cent interest," the report said.

"The court said if a private company's business be curtailed or destroyed by the operations of municipalities which will be lawful competition from which no legal wrong results."

The company's report said the city of Jackson, Tenn., already has started competition with a National Power subsidiary, the West Tennessee Power and Light company.

National Power and Light, 46 per cent of whose stock is owned by the Electric Bond and Share company, reported an increasing tax burden and showed earnings for 1937 which were in line with earlier estimates. Net profit of the company last year was $4,991,976, compared with $4,968,257 in 1936. Net equity in the income of subsidiaries for the twelve months ended Dec. 31 was $10,542,915, compared with $8,564,682 in 1936.

A STATEMENT

Relative to the "Safe Driver Reward Plan" for Buyers of Automobile Insurance

The Insurance Brokers Association of Illinois, whose membership embraces the leading insurance brokers of this State, has made a careful analysis of the so-called "Safe Driver Reward Plan," now being publicized by certain insurance companies, and as representatives of the insurance buying public, whose interests we are pledged to support, the Association makes known that it cannot recommend it as the most favorable plan for the automobile insurance buyer. This is one of the facts upon which we based our decision:

A careful driver with a record for safe driving can buy Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance on a private passenger car in financially sound companies with premium credit in advance for the so-called "SAFE DRIVER REWARD"—thereby eliminating possible dispute relative to "SAFE DRIVER REWARD" refund at the end of the policy year.

Before buying or renewing Automobile Insurance, discuss this suggestion with your own broker, and Remember—"For complete protection and service; there is no substitute for the competent insurance broker."

New Bridge Opens Way.

Saturday Capt. C. E. Robinson brought his bow down from Sault Ste. Marie to enter the Calumet river for the first time. Until the new 106th street bridge was recently completed, the Le Moyne had been unable to traverse the river because of her 70 foot beam.

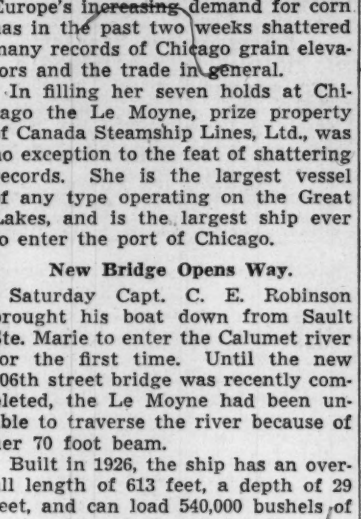

Built in 1928, the ship has an overall length of 613 feet, a depth of 29 feet, and can load 540,000 bushels of grain with a 20 foot draft. However, the slip at the Northwestern Grain elevator at 122d street and Torrence avenue, where the grain was shipped for Cargill, Inc., did not permit the boat to use its full capacity.

This was also a record single loading for the elevator, which handles about 65,000,000 bushels of grain annually. Between May 13 and 16 the elevator expects to load ten steamships with more than 3,000,000 bushels of corn, virtually all of it bound for Europe.

Big Job to Get to Lake.

With the vessel loaded late in the day, Capt. Robinson began his five hour task of warping the huge ship down the river to the lake. Normally he operates between Fort William and Kingston, Ont. On this trip he will go to Port Colborne, then through the Welland canal to Lake Ontario and Kingston.

The long carrier is too big to go through the St. Lawrence river. So at Kingston she will transfer the corn to five smaller vessels which will take the cargo to Montreal, the last stop before Europe.

The Canadian steamship Le Moyne, largest grain carrier in the world, pulled slowly out of the Calumet river last night, her spacious holds filled with nearly 525,000 bushels of corn, the largest single shipment of corn ever loaded on the Great Lakes.

The grain is destined for transhipment through Montreal to the yawning maw of the European market. Europe's insatiable demand for corn has in the past two weeks shattered many records of Chicago grain elevators and the trade in general.

In filling her seven holds at Chicago the Le Moyne, prize property of Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., was no exception to the feat of shattering records. She is the largest vessel of any type operating on the Great Lakes, and is the largest ship ever to enter the port of Chicago.

Autogiro Races from Airport to Postoffice Roof with Airmail Cargo—Pilot Floats to a Perfect Landing

Autogiro, which made airmail flight from Chicago airport, as it came to a stop on steel landing mat on roof of the postoffice yesterday. The giro moved forward only four feet after Pilot Johnny Miller set it down on the south edge of the mat, but he then taxied the machine around so that spectators, rushing out to welcome him, would not be endangered by whirling propeller blades. Skyscrapers formed background for the historic event.

A. L. Arnold, chief airmail clerk at Chicago airport, putting mail pouch in giro. Pilot Miller carried three pouches packed with a total of 135 pounds of mail.
